

Boys' Killing Described

'I Told Him to Say His Last Prayers'

QUEBEC (CP)—A 43-year-old paroled rapist Wednesday described how he killed four boys after sexually attacking them and then was found criminally responsible for their deaths by a coroner's jury.

Leopold Dion, 43, confessed he killed the four boys "because I didn't want to go back to penitentiary."

Crown Prosecutor Jean Bienvenue said Dion will be arraigned today on charges of capital murder in all four slayings.

Dion was paroled last fall after serving 17 years of a life sentence for rape.

It took the jury two minutes to return the verdict after Dion had testified in detail for 2½ hours.

Dion's testimony about how he lured the boys numbered the courtroom and left relatives weeping.

There were 60 provincial policemen, 20 of them in the courtroom and the others outside, to prevent any possible outbreaks.

Dion said that he told all four boys that he was a photographer for an American magazine. He picked them up in his car, drove them around town, then took them to Portneuf County, about 25 miles west of here.

Any charges against Dion will be decided on by the attorney-general's department of Quebec, where charges in cases of violent death are not lodged until after an inquest.

Shortly before Dion told his story Wednesday night, his case was discussed briefly in the Commons at Ottawa where Donald MacDonald, parliamentary secretary for justice, declined to disclose details of how he was released.

Senators Cautious Over Pact

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Secretary of State Dean Rusk gave two Senate committees a look at a tentative draft of the nuclear test ban treaty Wednesday. Reaction ranged from preliminary approval to opposition from Republican Sen. Barry Goldwater.

In the armed services committee, besides Goldwater's declaration he could not vote for the proposed pact, the reception consisted of "cautious skepticism," according to Sen. Henry Jackson of Washington.

Says Russia:

China Red Enemy

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet defence ministry Wednesday denounced the Red Chinese as "enemies" who are trying to incite the Soviet people against the Communist party and shake their confidence in the Kremlin leadership.

It was the first time since the bitter Sino-Soviet ideological dispute erupted that the Communist Chinese were publicly branded "enemies" of the U.S.S.R.

The attack came in Communist of the Armed Forces, the official monthly publication of the defence ministry.

"Our enemies well understand that the strength of the party lies in its unity with the masses and the strength of the people lies in the leadership for which reason they are aiming their poisoned ideological arrows principally at the party," the magazine said.

He is reported to have a personal fortune of $330,000,000.

Attorney-General Instructs RCMP:

LAY CHARGES IN TOLL CASE

By TERRY HAMMOND

An RCMP official said yesterday the force has received instructions from the attorney-general's department to lay charges in connection with alleged toll thefts at the government ferry service terminal in Nanaimo.

Inspector George McKay, officer commanding the Vancouver Island sub-division, told the Colonist yesterday that instructions to proceed with the laying of charges had been sent to the Nanaimo RCMP detachment.

But a Nanaimo RCMP official said the word had not yet arrived.

ONE INDIVIDUAL

Insp. McKay expected the charges to be laid today or Friday. He said only one individual will be charged.

Decision to lay charges in the case came after RCMP conducted an intensive investigation into operations at the terminal.

PROMINENT FAMILY

The police investigation was launched after former terminal manager Jack Washer, 42, charged that a toll-taker who had admitted thefts to ferry service officials was being protected from prosecution because he came from a prominent Nanaimo family.

Mr. Washer was fired from his job last month for failing to give adequate supervision—a charge that arose from discovery of alleged thefts.

APPEAL AUG. 12

Meanwhile, a civil service commission spokesman said yesterday the appeal against dismissal will be heard on Aug. 12.

The hearing will be conducted before the full commission consisting of chairman Dr. Hugh Morrison, deputy welfare minister Ray Rickinson and deputy municipal affairs minister Everett Brown.

FINAL APPEAL

If Washer is not satisfied with the commission's ruling he can make a final appeal to a civil service board of reference which would have to be specially set up by cabinet order.

A ferry service investigation into the alleged toll thefts by one of the terminal's collectors was weeks old when the former terminal manager brought the case into the open with an exclusive Colonist interview.

NOT INFORMED

He said he had been fired following an investigation by ferry service security personnel which he had not been informed about beforehand.

The probe should have been made by the RCMP, he claimed at the time.

He said a collector had been fired by the ferry service after interviews with officials.

NO CHARGES

The officials, he charged, had assured the collector no charges would be laid if he signed a statement admitting toll thefts. Mr. Washer estimated the thefts at thousands of dollars and said the toll collecting system was at fault.

Lack of a proper ticketing system was an "invitation to theft," he claimed.

CLOSE SATURDAY

Premier Bennett, chairman of the B.C. Toll Authority, indicated following Washer's charges that a close scrutiny was being given the collection system and that changes might be made if a better procedure could be evolved.

New, Big Wheat Deal Set with Red China?

WINNIPEG (UPI)—Negotiations have been completed between Canada and Communist China for a big wheat deal, estimated at about $150,000,000, unconfirmed reports said here Wednesday.

The last Canadian sale of wheat to China was last fall when terms were announced for 24,000,000 bushels amounting to about $65,000,000.

UN Commission Expels Portugal

GENEVA (Reuters)—The United Nations Economic and Social Council expelled Portugal from the economic commission for Africa Wednesday, but failed to reach a decision on South African membership in the regional body.

'Unite With Reds'

MOSCOW (AP)—Premier Khrushchev has promised Africans a quick end to colonial regimes on their continent if they unite and join the Communist camp.

In a message Wednesday to governments which participated in the recent African summit conference at Addis Ababa, Khrushchev said "fighters for national independence" could count on practical assistance from the Soviet Union.

SEVEN TO ZERO

The decision to expel Portugal was taken by seven votes to zero with 11 abstentions in the 18-member council.

The resolution proposing the move was sponsored by Ethiopia and Senegal, whose delegate accused Portugal of carrying out a "vast genocidal campaign" against her African subjects.

Suspend Portugal Ghana Tells UN

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—A Ghanaian told the United Nations security council Wednesday it should suspend Portugal from UN membership unless Portugal acts by mid-September to end alleged repression in Angola.

Portugal denied there was such repression in its African colony and invited four African cabinet ministers present to go to Angola and Mozambique, see things for themselves and talk with the Portuguese about African problems.

Their speeches highlighted the third day of the 11-nation council debate on the situation in Portuguese African territories, started by request of 32 African countries.

Ghanaian chief delegate Alex Quaison-Sackey accused Portugal of ignoring the council's 1961 resolution calling on her to "desist forthwith from repressive measures" in Angola, then the scene of a rebellion.

No Reasons Given

Dr. Guy Marcoux (Ind. BC—Quebec Montmorency) wanted to know who recommended the parole, said Mr. MacDonald said the Parole Board cannot discuss its reasons for liberating convicts.

Mr. MacDonald said the parole board has full powers to grant conditional releases and has exclusive jurisdiction.

He said no more detailed statement could be given until "justice had taken its course" in Dion's case. There would be no investigation of how the board paroled convicts.

The justice department could only express its deepest sympathy to the families of the four dead boys.

Three weeks ago, parole board chairman G. T. Street said Dion had been freed after "a favorable psychiatric report."

Dion broke down several times. Each time he described the death of the boys, his voice cracked and he sobbed.

Handcuffed to two husky guards, Dion, a powerful, five-foot-ten 200-pounder, was led to the witness box while relatives of the dead boys watched.

After describing how he sexually attacked and then strangled Guy Lockhart 12, of Keswick April 20, he said he did it because "I didn't want him to tell anybody, because I would have to go back to penitentiary."

He then put his head in his hands and sobbed.

"I told him to say his last prayers, that I didn't want to keep him from going to heaven," he said. There were sobs from the back of the courtroom.

Had No Choice

"I told him I had no choice," Dion testified. "He said 'let me go and I won't tell' but even if he meant it then a 12-year-old boy couldn't have been depended on."

He testified he had no sexual satisfaction from any of the boys.

There was a five-minute adjournment to allow Dion to regain composure.

When he returned, he said he had given the Luckenluck boy at least two minutes to pray.

"He seemed to be praying," Dion testified. "I squeezed as hard as possible so he wouldn't suffer."

Dion then told how Sunday, May 5, he met Michel Morel, 9, and Alain Carrier, 11, on the Plains of Abraham in Quebec City.

He attracted them with his box camera. He took them to an abandoned house near Port Rouge, 20 miles west of Quebec, and up to an attic room in which he sometimes lived.

He said that at one point he heard a car outside and found that a family was about to picnic on the yard near the house.

He told them it was private property and they drove away.

Then he went back to the attic and talked the boys into posing for pictures, giving them a couple of pairs of short pants to be used instead of bathing suits.

They believed he worked for a film company. His voice breaking again, Dion said he decided to separate the boys. He sent one to his car to listen to the radio, then tied the other to the bed.

When it became evident what he wished, he said, each boy refused. He said Michel Morel, told he was going to be killed, said a Hail Mary and an Act of Contrition aloud.

Khrushchev Encouraging Non-Aggression Pact Snag Delays Test Ban Signing

MOSCOW (AP)—American, British and Soviet delegates were believed to have concluded the final draft of a nuclear test-ban treaty Wednesday, but its initialing was held up by arguments over a non-aggression pact between NATO and the Communist bloc.

Not only was much of Wednesday's meeting devoted to the non-aggression pact, but Premier Khrushchev himself returned it to centre stage.

While negotiators worked a long day at Spiridonovka Palace, the news agency Tass released a letter from Khrushchev to Africans saying that signing the ban on nuclear tests in the air, in space and under water could result in "a radical turn toward a better international climate."

He added that this change for the better could come from the pact "as well as by signing a non-aggression pact."

Although he linked the two, the premier did not specifically say they must be bound together.

Khrushchev's letter was written to the heads of 30 African states who met in May in Addis Ababa, Ethiopia. In it, he also offered them a guarantee not to use nuclear weapons in Africa if a third world war broke out provided the Western powers would make the same pledge.

Both the Americans and British were ready to talk about non-aggression, but they were reported to have told the Russians again that talks about it was all they were authorized to do. They wanted a test-ban agreement without complications.

Both the American and British delegations came out of Tuesday's talks jubilant. A signature was looked upon as likely Wednesday by correspondents later were advised to be cautious in their forecasts on the time for initialing.

The treaty was essentially what was proposed nearly a year ago by the British and Americans at the 17-nation disarmament committee in Geneva.

Ward Art Show Ordered Shut

LONDON (UPI)—Dr. Stephen Ward's art show was to be given 48 hours to close today.

A London County Council order charged the Museum Street gallery which is exhibiting the works broke a building bylaw. It gave the gallery owners two days to apply for a licence or face a summons.

There are 145 portraits by Ward on sale at the gallery for a total of $80,000. The proceeds will go to pay for Ward's defence against vice charges. (See Page 25.)

Since the show opened two days ago 1,500 persons paid five shillings (70 cents) each to see it. Seventeen paintings were sold for about $2,000 ($3,000).

Robert Katz, one of the gallery's two directors, said he is taking legal advice.

"We will fight," Katz said. "This is bureaucracy gone mad."

Among the portraits on show at the exhibition are those of Prince Philip, Princess Margaret, Premier Khrushchev and Archbishop Makarios. A portrait of former prime minister John Diefenbaker was bought by a Canadian.

'Go It Alone' Pakistan Cry

RAWALPINDI (Reuters) — Pakistani legislators demanded Tuesday that the government sever defence ties with the West and seek non-aligned aid and friendship wherever Pakistan can find it.

Opposition members of the National Assembly were launching a two-day foreign policy debate following External Affairs Minister Z. A. Bhutto's speech last week saying "the largest country in Asia" would help Pakistan against any Indian attack.

Anger has risen high in this country over British and American arms aid to India and the agreement to put an American radio transmitter in India.

Yusuf Khattack, a deputy opposition leader, said he hopes Bhutto made his statement "after a clearcut understanding" with Communist China and not merely "on an inference."

He said Pakistan should leave the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization and the Central Treaty Organization, which Khattack said are worthless pacts, since the West strengthened Pakistan's enemy, India.

Bhutto replied: Pakistan has had an assurance from "our friend" — Communist China — of help if India attacked her.

The two-day debate wound up without a vote.

Green Light to a Fortune?

NEW YORK — Mrs. Hilda Cardy, 77, ex-wife of Canadian financier Vernon Cardy, 77, has the green light to sue for half of Cardy's $30,000,000 fortune.

Supreme court Justice Henry Clay Greenberg ruled the contract of renunciation which Mrs. Cardy signed in 1950 is not a bar to her suit. Mrs. Cardy, now a U.S. citizen, charged Cardy induced her to waive her right in his fortune "by fraud and deception."

Mrs. Cardy was divorced from the Montreal magnate after a sensational trial in which she charged he "brazenly" flaunted his adulteries and lived openly with Ethel Ferguson, now Mrs. Cardy.

WASHINGTON — Howard Jenkins, 48, a Republican and former law professor, was the choice of President Kennedy to become the first Negro member of the U.S. National Labor Relations Board. The job pays $20,000 a year.

How Long? Georgia On Red Mind

LONDON (AP) — There's something about Georgia the one in the Soviet Union — that seems to keep people living to a ripe old age. Moscow radio said Wednesday night a medical team set out lately to find out why. They came back with no clear conclusions but some startling statistics.

The republic has, according to the count given in the broadcast, 2,100 men aged 100 years or over.

Of 100 cases investigated, two were cited as typical:

Dehuguk Grintsiya, aged 121 — his only complaint was he is getting slightly deaf.

A villager called Maladya, aged 103 — his last illness was whooping cough as a child.

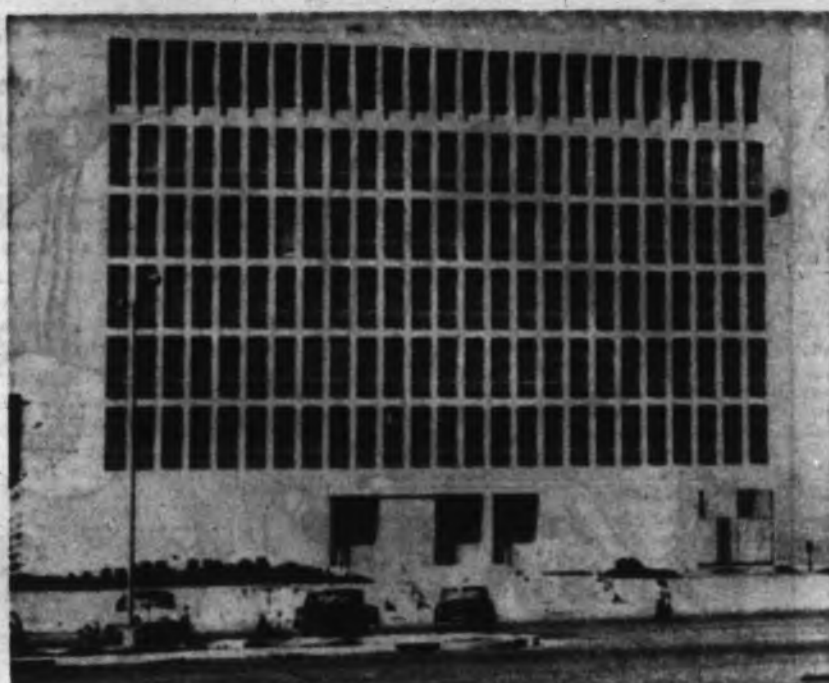

Apparently the researchers found nothing to explain what keeps death at bay.

Diplomatic Tradition Smashed by Cubans

Countries may break diplomatic ties but one never seizes the other's embassy, according to tradition — at least, one never did until Wednesday, when Cuba seized the U.S. embassy in Havana.

A U.S. state department spokesman in Washington, who called it "an unprecedented action," said the building remains U.S. property under international law.

But he did not say what steps the U.S. would take to recover it.

In recent years, since the break with Castro, the embassy has been used by the Swiss. They have been looking after U.S. affairs in the Cuban capital.

France Vetoes NATO Bid For Strategy

PARIS (UPI)—President de Gaulle has rejected a proposal to set up a special mixed planning group for NATO which would map the alliance's long term strategy, French government sources said Wednesday.

The proposal for a planning group was made a year ago by NATO secretary-general Dirk Stikker of the Netherlands.

France's rejection will be announced at a special session of the NATO permanent council today by France's representative, Francois Seydoux.

WILL INSIST

The sources said Seydoux will insist long term strategy is a matter for decision by NATO member governments and the military standing group in Washington—not by a group of anonymous officials named by the NATO secretary-general.

The NATO council of ministers at its meeting at Ottawa in May instructed the permanent council in Paris to continue studying with the help of NATO military authorities the future strategic problems, the manpower needs and the available resources of the alliance.

DETAILED PLAN

On May 15, it was learned, Stikker handed the permanent council a detailed plan under which the council would be aided not only by NATO military authorities but also by a special mixed planning group under him.

The group would consist both of members of the NATO secretariat and of military advisers. It would be given sweeping powers to assemble information and to carry out future planning.

PLANNING WORK

Three subcommittees already have been set up in NATO to do advanced planning work. NATO military advisers also were instructed to give estimates of probable military and strategic requirements up to 1970.

Masked Japan Dockers Unload Sulphur Cargo

YOKOHAMA (AP) — Japanese longshoremen wearing gas masks Wednesday unloaded from the Greek freighter George Embricos the first batch of unpackaged Canadian sulphur which they described as potentially dangerous.

The first unloading operation lasted five hours. Others will follow until 2,500 tons scheduled for unloading in Yokohama are removed, a spokesman for the longshoremen's union said.

WANTED IT BAGGED

The union earlier has refused to handle the cargo considered dangerous unless it was packaged in bags.

The freighter had put into this port two weeks ago. Following mediation efforts by the Japanese government the union reversed its earlier decision. The longshoremen's union's refusal to unload the sulphur was based on an incident in 1956 at Kobe, western Japan, when 42 laborers suffered poisoning while unloading bulk sulphur.

BERNARD LOVELL
... shown everything

Kremlin Thaw Warms Scientists

By TOM MARGERISON
From London

A thaw in scientific relations between the Soviet Union and the West, exceeding even the improvement in the political climate, now appears to be well under way.

British and American scientists who have visited Russia in the past few weeks have been amazed by the change in attitude.

Sir Bernard Lovell, who returned from Moscow last week, told me: "A month ago I would not have believed it possible to get so much co-operation from the Russians."

He came back with a firm promise of direct collaboration with the secret Russian deep-space tracking station which has been built in a remote part of the Crimea. Even more surprising, he was taken to see the station and was shown its equipment. When Dr. Glenn Seaborg, head of the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission, visited Russia a number of weeks ago, he was shown a number of laboratories and plants which had previously been closely guarded against foreigners.

The Russians have also agreed to work with the Americans on experiments on the Echo II communication satellite due to be launched this year.

They will use a 40-foot dish aerial at Gorky to bounce signals off the aluminium surface of the balloon satellite and to receive signals from the U.S. reflected from it.

Practically the only restraint imposed on Professor Lovell during his visit to the deep-space tracking station was that he was asked not to reveal the location of the site.

The surprising thing, he said, was that it was really just a collection of shacks, like a disused army camp. Inside, the equipment was of very high quality. They were using the kind of amplifiers that Jodrell Bank hopes to install later this year.

There are three telescopes, which can be controlled together or separately, spaced about 10 kilometers apart. The station, which cost about $55,000,000, was completed in a year.

The Russians are keen to collaborate with Jodrell Bank both on joint radar investigations of the moon and planets and on radio astronomical observations.

They also hope for collaboration in tracking future space probes and moon rockets.

A team of Soviet astronomers may come to Jodrell Bank, primarily to collaborate on radio astronomy but also to work on space rocket tracking. The Russians want this kind of help because they have only one space-tracking station.

Russia Vilified in Home Propaganda

Chinese Foster Hatred

By RICHARD HUGHES
from Hong Kong

The Chinese Communist Party's anti-West and anti-Khrushchev campaign is growing in virulence and spreading throughout the country, according to first-hand reports reaching here.

In particular, Asian diplomats in Peking say, Chinese are now pushing the propaganda line that Russia illegally holds frontier lands seized from China by the czars.

These claims are linked with recent disturbances among non-Chinese minorities in Sinkiang and the northwest which are now attributed to violence by marauding Russian border patrols.

A party-line directive for guidance of cadres and officials makes the following additional basic points for emphasis at committee and communal meetings on factory and village level:

● Soviet demands for repayment of military aid during the Korean war were mainly responsible for reduced Chinese food rations.

● Withdrawal of Soviet technicians and broken pledges of Soviet aid caused last year's systematic shutdown of city factories and mass transfer of workers to farms.

● Higher living standards in Russia are being secured and improved at the expense of Chinese farmers and workers.

These allegations, reiterated at regular party and commune meetings, give substance to explanations of the Chinese case in Sino-Soviet ideological dispute and are seasoned with violent personal abuse of Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev.

Quoted epithets like "Khrushchev the bald-headed donkey," "drunken pig" and "traitor to Russian people and all Marxist workers" leave no doubt that Chinese party propagandists are able to vary for the masses the finesse and profundity of their dialectic at top party conferences.

BACKGROUND

Courtesy Call Becomes Quiz Session

Hellyer Cross-Examines Lemnitzer

By DAVE MCINTOSH

Gen. Lyman Lemnitzer, supreme Allied commander, Europe, came to Ottawa for a courtesy call this week. But he spent two days answering tough questions thrown at him by Defence Minister Hellyer.

Why, Mr. Hellyer asked in effect, did NATO assign the RCAF Air Division in Europe an exclusively nuclear low-level bombing role when two of its bases are in France, which doesn't permit American nuclear warheads on her territory?

In any case, as Gen. Lemnitzer told reporters, Canada is the only NATO country with nuclear carriers in Europe which can't be armed with nuclear warheads.

He said there are alternative proposals to minimize this "limitation" on the eight-squadron RCAF Air Division of supersonic CF-104 low-level jet bombers.

He didn't say what these alternatives are. But they are understood to include use of satellite fields in Belgium and Germany and possible aircraft launching of planes from tiny clearings. But whatever they are, they involve money.

Mr. Hellyer's probing questions put to Gen. Lemnitzer are part of his "operation reality," as it is known in the defence department.

In other words, he's asking: Does this program make a real military contribution to defence? Does that program make sense? Are we doing that just because we've always done it? If Canada made such and such a commitment to NATO, why can't Canada change it?

When he gets the answers, he will be able to decide what the roles of the armed forces should be.

Important Medical Advance

Stress Triggers Diabetes

By HARRY NELSON
from Los Angeles

Three psychiatrists at the University of California at Los Angeles have concluded that psychological stress can be the trigger producing a full-blown case of diabetes in susceptible persons who previously had no symptoms.

The psychiatrists based their conclusion on a study of 20 men and five women who had recently acquired the disease.

Dr. Paul F. Slawson, William R. Flynn and Edward J. Kollar, found that 20 of the diabetics had suffered an emotional crisis before the disease was discovered.

The crisis consisted of a death or separation from a spouse, child, parent or pet, or a social, occupational or financial setback, they reported in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

They also found diabetics whose disease had been well controlled by insulin suddenly go out of control when the patients suffered a personal loss.

Their study points up something that doctors and patients have known intuitively for hundreds of years—that psychological stress can trigger physical illness.

What scientists are now trying to learn is: How? What are the mechanisms by which the environment, emotions, stresses and even hidden wishes "feed" the nervous system so as to cause the body to behave as it does?

For the first time since man began to ponder this question it appears that he may learn some of the long-hidden answers.

The new hope springs from the present ability to probe the depths of the brain and map the activities of its 10,000,000,000 cells as they relate to one another and the rest of the body.

This new capacity is partly made possible by the modern technology which has spawned fine electronic instruments and computers with the capacity to handle the incredible amount of information required to produce significant answers.

These tools provide the means by which researchers in a number of fields can test theories and make new advances in learning about brain function.

Until recently the mind has been almost exclusively the domain of psychiatrists and psychologists. Today, however, physiologists, who have previously been concerned mainly with the body outside the brain, are applying themselves to the organ which to a large extent controls the whole body.

The double-pronged attack by psychiatrists and physiologists and other basic researchers is expected to clarify many of the ways that the mind and body interact.

By determining the mechanics of dreams, emotions, hallucinations, learning and numerous other manifestations of mind, and correlating them with what is known about the psychic aspect of mind, researchers hope to add enormously to current knowledge.

It appears that the ego and super ego—all terms originated by Sigmund Freud to signify instinctive, conscious and inhibitory brain functions—have physical counterparts in the brain.

Twenty-three hundred years ago Hippocrates declared that "men ought to know that from nothing else but from the brain comes joys, delights, laughter and sports, and sorrows, griefs, despondency and lamentations."

Hippocrates knew the brain controlled these things. Today's researchers are learning how it does it and what can be done to help an ailing brain.

Drowned Spies Jolt Japanese

By KIR COOPER from Tokyo

Increasing espionage operations here by spies armed with Soviet weapons have alarmed the Japanese and jolted security officials into action.

The National Police Security Agency is accelerating anti-espionage measures since the discovery early this month of two drowned North Korean spies in Akita prefecture on the Sea of Japan coast 250 miles northwest of here.

Near the bodies police found the usual spy paraphernalia—rubber rafts, code books and wireless equipment. But what alarmed them most was the discovery of Russian-made pistols and a large supply of ammunition. Police fear the pistols were intended for use in an assassination, political murders being almost a way of life in Asia.

Police have known for some time that North Korean spies have been slipping into Japan but they say it is difficult to catch them. Public apathy, rough terrain and, in some cases, lax security make it easy for spies to sneak into areas bordering the Japan Sea.

Captured spies confessed to police last year that North

Korean agents are hand-picked for Japan and trained at an espionage school on the outskirts of Pyongyang.

Security officials said the Communists consider Japan a fertile field to gather information about U.S. military forces, Japan's defence forces and the influence at work in the East-West blocs.

Such information is relatively easy to obtain, as the average Japanese school child knows. Japan has no secrets protection law. And leftist politicians often leak delicate information to the press or minority rubble-rousing organizations.

Girl's Death Sparks Insecticide Probe

The B.C. health department is investigating the dangers of agricultural insecticides as the aftermath of the poisoning death of a two-year-old Terrace girl.

Health Minister Martin said Wednesday a full report on the Terrace case has been requested by his department and an investigation is being pursued by deputy minister Dr. J. A. Taylor.

India Eyes Unsettled Canada

By JURGEN HESSE

The new Liberal government in Canada hasn't had a chance to "settle down for an active role in east-west mediation," the Indian trade commissioner told The Daily Colonist yesterday.

"We hope this harmonizing between India and Canada, as we had with the Disenbaker government, will increase in our work at the United Nations," said Chandra Shekhar Jha who was a guest at Government House with his wife.

But, he added, "We have to see (about that)." Mr. Jha was appointed trade commissioner in July, 1962, and is currently on an acquaintance tour of western Canada.

Touching on other questions of world trade and world policies, Mr. Jha.

● Said "with a little effort" Canadian-Indian trade could increase in the next years beyond the annual $75-

000,000 export between the two countries;

● Said if the door of trade to the United Kingdom "were shut," Canada could provide a market for India;

● Said expansion of Indian trade with Russia had reached $1,000,000,000 a year;

● Said India's "primary concern now is our security" in the face of last fall's Chinese attack on India.

Asked whether India is trying to maintain its traditional mediating role at the UN, Mr. Jha said "our attention is absorbed more by the defence (of India) than by anything else at the moment."

"We don't want somebody else to fight for us."

Despite rain-slick board at Qualicum Jamboree last weekend, none of the youngsters trying for limbo contest slipped or fell. These are winners: Terry Hunt of Vancouver lowered bar to 20 inches, and Bobby Cooper, 12, of Qualicum, cleared same distance from ground.—(Agnes Flett)

De Gaulle to Open Door

PARIS (UPI) — President Charles de Gaulle will open the door for an invitation to visit President Kennedy in Washington at his forthcoming news conference, informed French government sources said Wednesday.

The sources said de Gaulle would be "constructive" and "friendly" in his remarks about the United States next Monday, in sharp contrast to his strongly critical attitude in his last news conference in January.

On that occasion, de Gaulle announced he would veto Britain's application for membership in the common market and abruptly rejected Kennedy's Polaris missile offer.

Social Climbers Like U.S. Slums

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Five Nepalese guides who aided in the American conquest of Mount Everest visited St. Louis' worst slums Wednesday — and liked what they saw.

Nawang Gombu, a Sherpa mountain guide who accompanied James Whitaker to the peak of the 29,028-foot mountain, said:

"I don't understand why you call that area slums. People living there have big, beautiful cars. They all wear fine clothes and have television sets."

The Nepalese are on a tour of the U.S. sponsored by the state department and the National Geographic Society.

Hospital Spruced Up for Jacquie

JACQUIE ... emergency?

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The U.S. Air Force said Wednesday it spent about $5,000 to spruce up a hospital wing at Otis air force base, Mass., after Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy's doctors checked to see if it would be available for emergency use for the birth of her third child next month.

The White House said it had no knowledge of the renovation project at the hospital, only 10 minutes by helicopter from Hyannis Port, Mass., and had not requested it.

An air force spokesman at the Pentagon insisted it was just a general "maintenance" chore — but the idea didn't come up until the first lady's physicians had been to Otis.

NO REQUEST

Col. C. R. Carlson, of the air force public information office said there had been "no request, no demand and no requirement from the White House that anything be done to enhance" the seven-room wing at Otis, which is 18 miles from the Kennedy's rented summer home at Squaw Island, Hyannis Port.

White House press secretary Pierre Salinger insisted Mrs. Kennedy was going to return from Hyannis Port to have her baby at Walter Reed Army Medical centre, Washington, as originally announced.

Skunker Skunked

WISCONSIN DELLS, Wis. (UPI)—Resort owner B. H. Adams decided the best way to get rid of a skunk was to load his fogging machine with insect repellent and stick the nozzle under a motel unit.

The insecticide mixture exploded, lifting the entire building off its foundation and splitting the flooring.

Car Crash Victim 'Critical'

Mrs. Mary Holden of Laneshire, England, victim of a traffic accident Friday on the Patricia Bay Highway, remained in critical condition in Royal Jubilee Hospital last night after being transferred from Rest Haven Hospital to Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Four victims of another accident on the Patricia Bay Highway Wednesday were in improving conditions.

Most seriously injured, Mrs. Nellie Stent of Sumnerland, B.C., was in fairly good condition. Miss Eunice Peters, 1120 Pembroke, and Mrs. Olive Rogers of North Vancouver are in satisfactory condition. All are at Rest Haven Hospital.

Miss Mary Baxter, 956 Fairfield, is in good condition in St. Joseph's Hospital.

Airline Car, Mail Stolen

DAWSON CREEK (CP) — RCMP detected Wednesday thieves stole an airline limousine here Tuesday evening and took with it an undetermined number of mail sacks, including three carrying registered mail.

Police said the stolen car was a light blue 1961 station wagon bearing B.C. licence plates C86-388. RCMP spokesmen said no value had been placed on the mail, but said federal postal investigators are expected to be brought here.

Daring Palace Raid Fails in Damascus

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Syrian soldiers and civilians staged a daring machinegun raid on the presidential palace in Damascus Wednesday but were driven back by army and national guard units in heavy fighting, Damascus radio reported.

The broadcast said several persons were killed in the battle, which lasted 45 minutes.

announced intention of forming a supra-national Nasserite party in the Middle East.

The Baathists, who rule Syria and neighboring Iraq, have come out strongly in the last months against union under Nasser.

If the Nasserite party were formed, it would be the second of two strong power blocs cutting across Arab borders and would alter Arab politics significantly.

Bitar, in an attack on Nasser, summed up the Baathist objections saying the "era of the strongmen was over."

Bitar told newsmen the Baath party had many conflicts with strongmen but the strongmen are now gone and only the Baath remains.

Bitar also accused Nasser of "capriciousness" for pulling out of the proposed UAR, Syria-Iraq federation which was drawn up this spring.

Haiti in Grip Of Duvalier

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — President Francois Duvalier's regime appeared once again in control of the countryside Wednesday but Haitians still spoke in awe of a bloody two-day battle in the hillside overlooking the Haitian capital.

The fight put up by hands of young rebels at the nearby mountain communities of Petion-Ville and Kenscoff last week was one of the most dramatic attempts to topple Duvalier since he took office in 1957.

But three days of quiet, the lifting of travel restrictions in the Petion-Ville and Kenscoff areas and a government communique on the fighting bolstered the impression that Duvalier was once again in control of the situation and the young rebels had either been wiped out or dispersed.

The week of fighting July 14-21 apparently began as a series of hit-and-run gun and bomb raids by anti-Duvalier forces and reached its peak in an engagement at a mountain cave near Kenscoff July 17-18.

Accused Didn't Understand

A man charged with being in possession of stolen goods elected to be tried by magistrate after entering a plea of not guilty in city magistrate's court Wednesday.

Ernest E. Dunstan, 80 San Jose, is charged in connection with a number of diamond rings which were stolen from Henry Birks Jewellers. Date of the trial will be Aug. 1. Dunstan altered his election from trial in a higher court after defence counsel Robert Monaghan explained the accused did not understand when he first elected for trial.

A motorist charged with impaired driving admitted an

Mountbatten Set To Visit Ottawa

LONDON (Reuters)—Admiral of the Fleet Earl Mountbatten, chief of the British defence staff, will hold talks in Ottawa and Washington Sept. 15-21, the defence ministry announced Tuesday.

earlier conviction and was sentenced to 14 days in jail. Court was told by defence counsel Alan Bigelow that Thomas Obee, 651 Grenville, had already turned in his driving licence and would not drive any more. The accused originally would not admit his earlier impaired driving conviction.

Edgar L. Fenton of Ladner entered a plea of guilty to charges of failing to remain at the scene of an accident and careless driving and was fined a total of $165. At an earlier appearance in court he pleaded not guilty to the failing to remain charge but altered his plea when the charge of careless driving was laid yesterday. Crown prosecutor T. P. O'Grady told the court the accused was convicted of criminal negligence three years ago and impaired driving earlier this year. Fenton told the court he had been charged with criminal negligence after "five guys beat me up. I had a fractured skull and all."

"I think you have a good imagination," said Magistrate William O'Neil. When he was arrested on the night of the accident Fenton told police the car's brakes failed. Police testified they checked the brakes but could find nothing wrong. Court was told Fenton had a job waiting for him. A fishing boat owner present in the courtroom said he wanted to put Fenton to work right away so he would keep out of trouble.

SYDNEY, Australia (AP)—Forty men and women skiers fled from a blazing building into a raging snowstorm in the Mt. Kosciuszko area of Australia's southern Alps. Barefooted skiers tried to fight the fire with buckets and hoses but the Kosciuszko Alpine Club building was destroyed in 40 minutes. No one was injured.

Victorians Jailed For Regina Theft

REGINA (CP)—Wayne Marshall Robertson, 28, of Victoria, was sentenced to three years in penitentiary and John Dundas Jones, 36, also of Victoria, was sentenced to two years Tuesday for breaking into a vault at a Regina farm equipment dealer's shop July 15 and stealing $85.

Robertson also received six months concurrent for being in possession of a wallet, identification papers and travelers' cheques belonging to a man in Lebanon, Ind. Jones' prison record, dating back to 1954, and Robertson's record, dating back to 1953, were read in court. Magistrate E. L. Elliott said Robertson was given a stiffer sentence because he appeared to have been the leader in the break-in.

Losing Touch

VANCOUVER (CP)—Police said Wednesday a thief broke into St. Andrew's-Wesley United Church overnight, ransacked filing cabinets and rifled drawers in the church office but apparently got nothing. Before he left he used an eraser to make an inscription on the office safe: "Losing my touch."

More Curbs on Milk?

The B.C. government is considering action to prevent trafficking in fluid milk quotas, Agriculture Minister Richter said Tuesday.

He said his department is becoming increasingly concerned over transfers of quotas for profit.

The intent of the Milk Industries Act was to equalize fluid milk quotas throughout the industry and not let large quotas be built up by single individuals through quota purchases.

Quota buying and selling has

Quotas Sold For Profit

been going on around Vancouver Island as well as in the Fraser Valley. In one area which the minister did not identify, 23 out of 26 quotas had recently changed hands.

The quotas govern the amount of fluid milk which can be marketed by a single individual. Milk production above that quota must be sold for conversion into other dairy products and brings a lower price.

Mr. Richter said that in some cases non-farmers are buying quotas and selling them at a profit. Aggravating the transfer situation is the fact that the fluid milk market is being threatened by over-production.

Under consideration are three alternatives—reduction of existing quotas, prohibiting transfers without the authority of the agriculture department and tying quotas to the farms they are issued to.

'Didn't Stand Chance'

Ship Fireman Wins Appeal Against SIU

MONTREAL (CP)—A member of the Seafarers' International Union of Canada, appealing a penalty slapped on him by the union, said Wednesday he didn't attend his "trial" a year ago because "you didn't stand a chance."

Stanley Bigelow of Hawkesbury, Ont., a fireman, told the SIU appeals board that he had "heard about them (the trials) before."

The appeals board, under Commodore G. C. S. Robertson, ruled the union was justified in fining Bigelow for some long-distance phone calls he had made on a union phone, but had exceeded its authority in ordering him banned from further postings on ships until the fine was paid.

The $111 fine covered the costs of the phone calls and tracking down the person who had made them, the union said.

RETURNED CARD

Commodore Robertson said the SIU constitution did not provide for a shipping-out ban and allowed members three months to pay a fine before facing suspension from the union.

An SIU trial committee last summer found Bigelow guilty of making 10 phone calls to his wife in Hawkesbury and imposed the fine and penalty.

After the appeals board ruling, SIU President Hal Banks returned Bigelow's union card and said he "had no intention of disagreeing with the decisions of the arbitrator."

The appeals board was set up in May to handle cases of SIU members who feel they have not been treated fairly by the union.

Labor Gives Views

OTTAWA (CP)—Top officials of the Canadian Labor Congress met Wednesday with Labor Minister MacEachen to discuss the Norris report on Great Lakes labor lawlessness.

Informants said there was a frank exchange of views on the controversial proposals of Mr. Justice T. G. Norris to clean up gangsterism, tyranny and violence in waterfront unionism.

The Vancouver jurist proposed a three-man trusteeship on marine labor after finding that the Seafarers' International Union of Canada was a lawless dictatorship of SIU President Hal C. Banks.

Meanwhile, the Canadian Maritime Union hinted that it is softening its threat to tie up the St. Lawrence Seaway to force government action against the SIU.

'Room for Doubt'

Alberta Fallout Claim Disputed

EDMONTON (CP)—There is room for doubt in the reported findings of a Red Deer doctor that radioactive fallout caused abnormalities in Alberta babies during 1961, Health Minister Dr. J. Donovan Ross said Wednesday.

He said the findings of Dr. L. J. Le Vann, reported in the latest issue of the Canadian Medical Association Journal, need substantiation by other studies before they can be accepted as final.

Dr. Le Vann said physical abnormalities among Alberta children born in 1961 were about twice as numerous as 1959. He claimed there is evidence which shows radioactive rainfall was the cause.

Dr. Ross said that regardless of what may have happened in 1960 there is no cause for alarm now. There have been no nuclear tests in recent months to cause atmospheric radiation.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Experts of the U.S. public health service's radiological health division declined to comment Wednesday on the view of an Alberta doctor that radioactive rain might be the cause of a two-fold increase—between 1959 and 1961—in physical abnormalities he said were found among children born in Alberta.

American officials said there were not enough data in accounts of the doctor's article to enable them to make any appraisal of the validity of his rainfall concept or the correctness of his figures.

However, they did reiterate a recent statement of the federal radiation council saying that whereas between 4,000,000 and 5,000,000 defective children can be expected to result in future generations from all causes, only about 3,000 additional can be expected from fallout and from carbon-14 in the atmosphere.

Garden Notes

Profuse AND Lasting

By M. V. CHESNUT, FREE

Every year I am becoming more and more filled with admiration for the Mock Orange, and especially for the double-flowered variety 'Viginal'.

With most flowering shrubs, either you get a terrific splash of bloom over a very short period of time, or if the shrub condescends to extend its blooming period, the blossoms are produced sparsely, doled out in dribs and drabs. The lilac and the double flowering almond are good examples of shrubs that "shoot the works," while the Chinese Witch Hazel and the winter-flowering Viburnum are typical of the long-blooming but miserly kinds.

With Philadelphia "Viginal," the fragrant sprays of double white "orange blossoms" are produced in great profusion, and keep on coming for the best part of a 10-week period. Offhand, I cannot think of any other shrub that combines such a marathon performance with such a profusion of bloom.

Like most shrubs that bear their blossoms on young wood, the Mock Orange needs regular pruning, and the best time is immediately after the blossoms fade. The pruning method is about the same as with the black currants—cutting out the wood which has borne flowers. These shoots are shortened to within about two inches of the old wood.

In addition to this formal pruning, I think it pays—at least with older specimens—to take out about one-third of the oldest stems right down to ground level every year. In this way, the shrub renews itself completely every third year. And as with raspberries, if too many young shoots spring from the roots, thin them out sufficiently to avoid congested growth.

The Mock Orange responds more enthusiastically than most shrubs to generous feeding, too, and a square meal in midsummer will have a noticeable effect upon next year's blooms. A surface mulch of mellow old manure, two inches thick and extending well out beyond the branch tips, provides the most satisfactory balance in nutrients, but while this is possible in a border devoted entirely to shrubs, I realize there are spots where it is impracticable to use manure—such as a lawn specimen, with only a tiny circle cut in the turf around it.

The problem here—and with all lawn trees and shrubs—is to get plant food to the roots in sufficient quantity to do some good without killing the grass with an overdose. The Ross Root Feeder is ideal for this sort of a job, injecting nutrients deep into the soil using the pressure of the garden hose. Failing this, make crow-bar holes in the sod 18 inches deep and 18 inches apart in a circle under the outermost branch tips, filling them with a high-test soluble fertilizer such as RX-15 or Instant Vigoro, one tablespoonful per gallon of water.

A little of the same liquid plant food sprayed over the leaves will contribute to the health and growth of the plant. Aigunre Liquid Feed, made from seaweed, seems to be more readily absorbed into the leaf pores than chemicals and has an even better toning-up effect.

ART BUCHWALD Meets the Joneses

It's Tough Being Kept Up With

According to everything you read, everyone is trying to keep up with the Joneses. Economists will tell you, if it were for people keeping up with the Joneses, the country would go into a tailspin and there would be widespread unemployment and a recession of monumental proportions.

Therefore the Joneses are very important and could be considered a most valuable natural resource.

You would think everyone named Jones would be happy to be the pace-setters, but such is not the case, at least not in our neighborhood. Just the other day we interviewed Mr. and Mrs. Jones, whom everyone in our area is constantly living up to, and it was a very enlightening talk.

Mr. Jones was just laying out a carpet of grass in front of his house. "It's the latest thing," he said. "You don't need grass seed any more. I suppose everyone on the block will be copying me soon."

"You must feel pretty good to be the pace-setter in the neighborhood," we said.

"Well," he replied, "it's a grave responsibility keeping ahead of everybody all the time. And it's expensive, too. But you kinda get used to it. Come on inside and have a bullshot."

"What's a bullshot?"

"It's vodka and consommé—the latest drink."

We went inside and were introduced to Mrs. Jones, who was watching color television on a 40-inch set.

"Well, here we want to interview you on how it feels to be named Jones," Mr. Jones told his wife.

Mrs. Jones said, "I hope you told him we're getting fed up."

"Now, Miriam."

"Well, if you won't tell him, I will," she said angrily. "It's getting to be a bore. Oh, I'll admit in the beginning I enjoyed it. Everyone admired us, everyone envied us, everyone tried to emulate us. But it's so hard to stay ahead."

"How do you mean, Mrs. Jones?"

"We were the first ones in the neighborhood to own two cars. Then everyone bought two automobiles to keep up with us. So we had to buy a third one and build a three-car garage. Now the people across the street have three cars, so we're going to have to buy a fourth one. It's getting too much."

"Hush, Miriam," said Mr. Jones.

"I don't care," Mrs. Jones said. "Did you tell him about our swimming pool? We put in a swimming pool. Three months later there were seven swimming pools in the area, so we had to come up with something new. We installed an outdoor kitchen in the patio. Now everybody has an outdoor kitchen in their patios. What else can we put there?"

"We're going to install a Finnish steam bath," Mr. Jones said. "No one around here has one."

"And then what?" Mrs. Jones said. "Last year we went to Europe. This year everyone is going to Europe, so now we have to go to the Far East."

"We've got a tiger hunt planned in Nepal for 1965," Mr. Jones said.

"I'm so sick and tired of travelling," Mrs. Jones complained. "Why can't people keep up with somebody else? All I seem to be doing is packing and unpacking, throwing parties I can't afford, buying Casini gowns, sending my children to the best private schools, and redecorating the house every month. I'd rather live the life of Riley."

"Now, Miriam," Mr. Jones said, "you shouldn't talk like that in front of this here reporter."

"I'm going upstairs and take a Lasterperin," Mrs. Jones said.

"What's that?" we asked Mr. Jones.

"It's the latest thing in headache powders. Works seven times as fast as aspirin."

SHEILAH GRAHAM Reports from London

Sellers Master's Voice

LONDON (NANA)—Another job for Peter Sellers! It's true. This time he will play the voice of Winston Churchill in the new documentary on the Great Man. He is the No. 1 choice. Below him, in this order, Richard Burton, who has been the voice on TV, Peter Ustinov, Sir Laurence Olivier and Sir Alec Guinness.

They are saying that in England there is the finest secret service in the world—the Russian secret service.

Walter Wanger, whom I spotted lunching at Les Ambassadeurs, will attend the opening of his Cleopatra in London at the end of the month. "I hope they have cut some of it," I said to Walter. They have. "I fought to have two pictures not the one long Cleopatra," he told me. "Then they would have had two moneybags instead of one." He still believes the film will make $100,000,000.

Attractive fortyish Michele Morgan was saying the other day in Paris that after two marriages she will never marry again. First husband Bill Marshall is now married to Ginger Rogers. Her second husband, French actor Henry Vidal died a few years ago of a heart attack. Quite a few Frenchmen are currently trying to make Michele change her mind.

Jean Sutherland will not be moving back to Kensington after her vacation in Italy. Too many neighbors complained of her singing practice. Imagine anyone not wanting to hear this great singer—and for free!

Albert Finney will not talk about his private life, but I can tell you that he took his small son Simon to a daddy was smothering. The 27-year-old Albert is divorced daddy was smothering, the 27-year-old Albert is divorced from Jane Wenham.

Peter O'Toole will be doing Hamlet on the London stage before he reports to Richard Brooks in Malaysia for Lord Jim... And Sir Alec Guinness will star at the Royal Court in Chelsea in Ibsen's Exit the King before reporting later in the year to Broadway for Dylan.

Quote from Trevor Howard, "The lines on my face don't come from cold cream, they come from living."

Nick Ray is tailoring The Saints, for Ingrid Bergman and Sir Laurence Olivier. He will make it next spring, following Next Stop, Paradise.

Oh, dear. All those American residents in Switzerland have to pay U.S. taxes, starting January of this year, just as though they were living in America. And this includes Yul Brynner, William Holden and Liz Taylor. But not Burton, Deborah Kerr or Charlie Chaplin. They are British subjects.

Here's one for the book. Delores Hart, now a novice nun in Connecticut, was nearly arrested as a prostitute last summer in London. She was in full make-up, after coming home from work. She had no key and her mother was out shopping. And she was marching up and down in the street when the heavy hand of the law descended.

Smell Sells Perfume in France

PARIS — I asked Madame Rochas, who is a lovely ex-mannequin and the only woman in the world who has a perfume named after her, what sells perfume in France and she said, so help me, the smell.

I was brought up to think that what sold perfume was its power as an aphrodisiac. The first perfume ad I can remember is that picture of a woman swooning in the arms of her violin teacher which has been running for decades in the New Yorker. I go way back to the days when perfumes had names like Surrender, Swoon, and Ecstasy.

A French perfume ad usually has a picture of the bottle. "Le nouveau parfum de Guerlain," it says. There's a wispy sketch of a girl's head. That's all. No sex. No seduction.

The French, in fact, have only very recently been persuaded to put any text in their perfume ads at all and then the text simply says the stuff smells good. Or it makes a nice gift. Never, never, never that it contributes to a girl's sexuality.

"We think in France that women don't like a perfume to be sexy," said Mrs. Rochas. "A woman buys perfume for herself, to be a part of herself, to complete herself. In North America you are obsessed with sexuality. In France, we do it, but we don't talk about it, and we don't want that kind of publicity for our perfume."

"A Frenchwoman doesn't want to use perfume to catch men. She doesn't use perfume to be seductive. In the text, we try to explain why the perfume is good."

"I think Madame Rochas is a very modern perfume," said Mrs. Rochas, who picked the scent herself. "I try to be a complete woman—with my job and my children and my husband—and I wanted a perfume of work."

that expresses all those things—career, marriage, children—and you can wear it night and day." It all sounds severely practical. Nothing in there about woman as temptress. The home, the office, the nursery. Nothing about the boudoir.

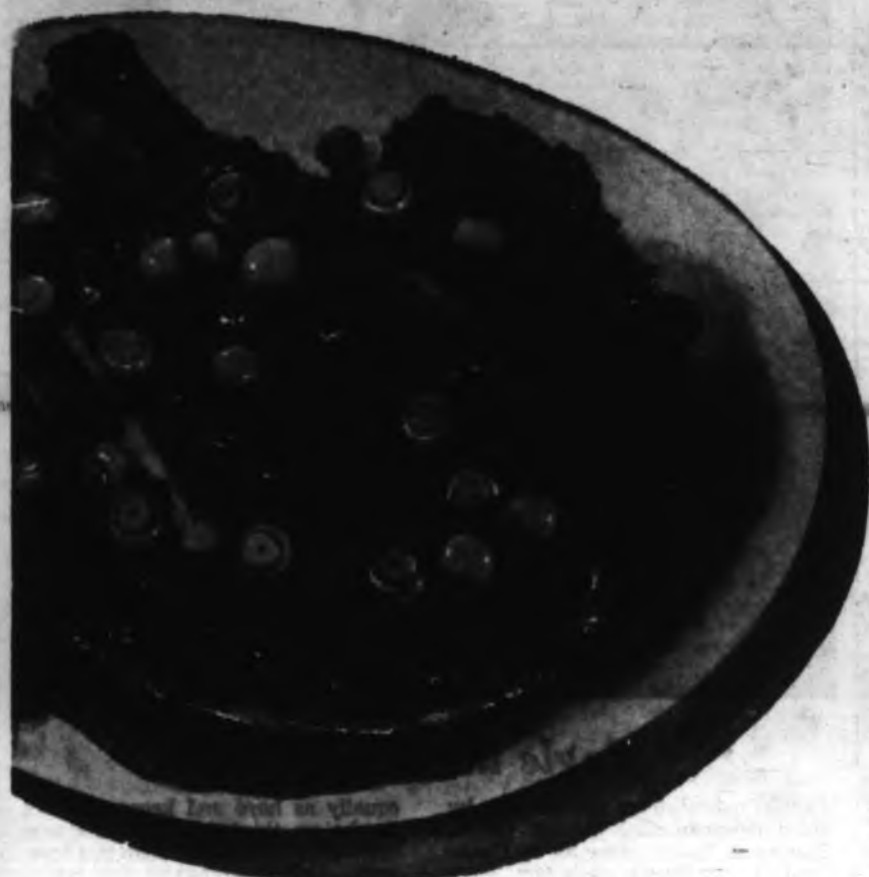

Thanks heavens, some of the old values are holding fast. God knows where this trend will end. If you start selling perfume because of the way the stuff smells, next thing you know they'll be selling cars because of the way they drive. Or advertising soap that gets you clean rather than gets you elected Queen of the May. Maybe even selling wristwatches because they tell time.

What will happen to Madison Avenue? Whole street will be out of work.

Seattle Boy Wins B.C. Junior Golf

VANCOUVER (CP) — Dan Scott of Seattle Wednesday won the B.C. junior golf championship with a 54-hole score of 213, three strokes under par. Scott fired a final round 70 over the par 37-35-72 Seymour Golf and Country Club course.

He finished four strokes ahead of Vancouver's Wayne Vollmer and six strokes ahead of three players, Seattle's Tom Tindall, Victoria's Gary Smith and Vancouver's Doug Robb.

Smith, Robb and Scott had been tied for first place entering the final round.

It was 16-year-old Scott, the Washington State junior champ, who blasted ahead of the other excellent young golfers among the 127 players in the tournament, and came home three under par for the 54-hole tourney. His scores were 74-69-70-213.

Vollmer was one under on 14 and parred 15, and excitment mounted. Scott, however, corrected his errors on 17 and got the hole with a par. On the 18th he ended all doubt by shooting one under par.

For Smith and Robb it was a bad day and both tied with Tom Tindall for third place.

The tournament was the final stage for B.C. golfers trying to earn a spot on the provincial team to play in the Canadian Junior Championships Aug. 27-30 in Victoria.

Victoria player Ricky Kent shot 77-74-78-227 for ninth position in the tourney. Jay Wilson and Noel Pumfrey of Victoria were far down the line.

TV Man Suits Up For Bomber Works

By GRAHAM COX

The world has learned a new approach to golf from Arnold Palmer. It's a pity that a few of Arnie's American colleagues haven't taken a course of good manners from him as well.

I refer particularly to one Phil Rodgers, and also to one Jack Nicklaus, who surprised me by his juvenile antics when he failed to win the British Open.

No, I haven't finished with the Open yet—not by a long way. Take Mr. Rodgers. Twenty-five years old, definitely a good golfer. I won't deny him that. From that point forward count me as the last man in the world who would ever join his fan club.

When he's winning you can hear him all over the clubhouse. When he's lost he can't be anything or unpleasant enough about British golf and golfers. Perhaps you read some of his comments. Among them was this remark: "British golfers are not fit to carry our bags."

Well, regular readers of this column will know that I am a severe critic of the British attitude and approach to the professional game. There is plenty to criticize. But as Mr. Rodgers will learn if he spends many more years in the game, you do not go to another country and make remarks like that.

Particularly you don't do it when you yourself have just broken all the rules of etiquette by acting like a schoolboy at a critical moment in one of the most important championships in the world.

I didn't realize when I saw Rodgers's antics on the last green on the last night of the championship that they were being televised into millions of homes. Since then scores of people have asked me what I thought.

All-American Hero

The circumstances were these. Rodgers had just holed out to make sure of a play off with the New Zealander, Bob Charles, the following day. He swept off his hat, threw it over the hole, performed a small war dance around it and generally acted as if he had just won the Second World War singlehanded.

All this would have been fine—if only Charles had not been standing there still waiting to sink a difficult putt to tie and join Rodgers in a play-off for a title worth thousands of pounds.

It was not just a question of breaking Charles's concentration, though that was enough in itself. That small jig around the hole did not exactly improve the turf across which Charles had to putt.

Furthermore—though let me make it clear right away that Rodgers wasn't actually guilty of this crime—it has been known many times for unscrupulous players to run their hands across the grass between the hole and an opponent's ball to rough-up the knap of the green.

This means that the opponent is quite likely to see his ball slow up and come to a halt in front of the hole despite the fact that he might have hit it perfectly.

That sort of thing is not gamesmanship. It is cheating. And although Rodgers can't be accused of it, poor Charles must have been waiting there wondering just what was going on.

After that—the worst incident of bad manners I have seen on a golf course for a long time—I am prepared to accept nothing in the way of advice or comment from this fellow.

Still Gripping at Midnight

Neither shall I pay much attention to Nicklaus. Okay, he had the championship in his pocket and then lost it. Was it anyone's fault but his? Is he the first man ever to suffer this way?

You would have certainly thought so had you been anywhere within 50 yards of his presence on that final night. At midnight he was still at it, complaining bitterly at how his luck had run out on him.

Over-clubbing by four clubs—Nicklaus took a two iron on the 17th when a six would have been fine—wasn't ill-luck. It's bad judgment.

These two men cast little credit on the United States of America during their brief stay in Britain.

Such a pity for Palmer, the greatest of them all, simply explained his defeat by confessing that he'd played badly. Here, truly is the Quiet American and I have a feeling that his name will be remembered when the others are long forgotten.

Relko Cleared

'Not Doped' Vows Owner

LONDON (AP) — "Relko was not doped," said Mrs. Francois Dupre Wednesday after an inquiry into the running of the Epsom Derby, a race won by Relko.

Mrs. Dupre, wife of the horse's French owner, trainer Francois Mathet and jockey Yves St. Martin were among persons who attended a 90-minute inquiry.

The meeting followed allegations that Relko had been doped to win the Derby May 23. Later Relko, an odds-on-favorite to win the Irish Derby, was pulled out of the Irish race seconds before the start because he went lame.

The inquiry into Relko's running in the English Derby was held by the stewards of Epsom.

Mrs. Dupre said she would be returning to England Aug. 7 to attend a hearing by the stewards of the Jockey Club, riding body of flat racing in Britain. The results of Wednesday's hearing were referred to the Jockey Club.

The inquiry was part of a bigger campaign to rid British tracks of horse-race doping. The Jockey Club recently said that seven horses were doped in the months of April and May.

A lawyer accompanying Mrs. Dupre said they were convinced nothing was wrong.

Mrs. Dupre commented: "Relko was not doped. I do not think that they (the Epsom stewards) needed convincing."

Hole-in-One Pays £10,000 For Henning

MOOR PARK, England (AP)—Harold Henning, South African pro golfer, shot a hole in one Wednesday and won £10,000, the highest individual prize ever landed in British golf.

Henning, using a No. 9 iron from his ace on the 156-yard 18th hole.

That final hole was the one that carried the special hole-in-one prize. He did it on the last stroke of the day in a round-robin tournament involving top professionals.

The ball bounced three times on the green, hit the base of the flag stick and then dropped in.

"OFTEN IMITATED — BUT NEVER EQUALLED"

Prairie Election Pledges 'Ditched' by Liberals?

OTTAWA (CP)—Initial prices for top-grade Prairie wheat, oats and barley will remain unchanged for another year and Canada will seek a sharp increase in use of Canadian wheat in international wheat disposal programs.

Trade Minister Sharp presented this grain package to the Commons Wednesday and opposition spokesmen immediately accused the government of ditching two prominent Prairie election-campaign promises. An initial price of $1.50 a bushel for No. 1 wheat will continue to be paid by the Canadian Wheat Board in the new crop year beginning Aug. 1. The figure for top-grade oats is 60 cents a bushel and for barley 50 cents.

But there was no mention in the long-awaited Sharp statement about "the Liberal party election program of $2 a bushel for top-grade wheat compared with the current going price at the Lakehead of about $1.95. The Liberal platform also called for another payment of a maximum $3 a bushel on 300 bushels of wheat per farmer.

JOHN OTTER PLEDGES
Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said the two "commitments" join the ranks of other Liberal promises.

H. A. Olson (SC—Medicine Hat) called the omission a "major retreat."

NDP Leader T. C. Douglas said the government has "simply ignored the commitment and I think they will not be allowed to ignore it by the great bulk of the Prairie farmers."

OTTAWA (CP)—Good to excellent crop progress in most parts of the Prairies has been reported by the Dominion

Bureau of Statistics. Record yields are in sight.

The bureau also says stocks of butter and butter oil have risen from 36,927,000 pounds on May 1, 1957, to 183,286,000 pounds on the same date this year.

Newspaper Deal Probed

OTTAWA (CP)—Justice Minister Chevrier told Douglas Fisher (NDP—Port Arthur) Wednesday that the anti-combines section of his department is looking into the acquisition of a controlling interest in the Sun Publishing Company Limited of Vancouver by F.P. Publications Ltd.

Mr. Fisher asked about the status of a 1960 undertaking that the government would be advised of any changes in the 1957 agreement by which The Sun Publishing Co. and the Southam Co. Ltd. set up Pacific Press Ltd. for joint production facilities but separate control of the Vancouver Sun and Vancouver Province.

"No such advice has been received by the director," Mr. Chevrier said.

New Job

Head of the B.C. government's division of public health engineering for 23 years, Reginald Bowring has resigned to accept a position with the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development. He will be sanitary inspector for its technical services division.

Interest Rates

Gordon Denies U.S. Deal

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Walter Gordon reiterated in the Commons Wednesday there is no agreement between Canada and the United States by which Canada will try to bring down interest rates in return for exemptions from the proposed U.S. securities tax.

Mr. Gordon was replying to Opposition Leader Diefenbaker. He asked the minister to "render a certain degree of certainty to the markets" on the point, since there were continuing reports that such an agreement was made during week-end discussions in Washington leading to the announcement of the exemption.

The finance minister said everything agreed to was in the communiqué, and rather than attempt to bring down interest rates in Canada, the government was trying to prevent them from going up.

MILK-BONE satisfies the bone hunger of your dog

A dog needs to chew, and knows it. In the absence of a bone, even the best-trained dog will find something else to chew—often something he shouldn't. But there are few bones in today's kitchens. Many that are available are not safe or good for your dog. That's why the modern dog goes bone-hungry.

The answer is MILK-BONE—the biscuit with the real bone shape that makes wonderful chewing, without a real bone's tendency to splinter or upset the digestion. For Seniors

Housing Hearing Planned

A $200,000 low rental apartment building for elderly people is planned for Townley Street in the Saanich Panhandle.

Saanich council will call a public hearing in connection with the rezoning application of Victoria Senior Citizens' Housing Society, a non-profit group which operates Banfield Lodge on Styles Street in Victoria West.

"There is a very great need for low rental apartments here for elderly people who cannot afford to pay $90 or $100 for an apartment," said a spokesman for the society.

ONE CENTRE

For some years, the society tried unsuccessfully to interest other agencies here in amalgamating their efforts towards provision of one large, economically operated housing centre for the old folks, he said.

Now it is going ahead with its plans for the $200,000 project on 1.35 acres of land on Townley Street.

The two-storey structure would have 17 one-bedroom suites and 21 bachelor units, with kitchenettes and bathrooms.

TOWARD COST

It is hoped that the provincial government will provide up to $65,000 in the form of a grant, towards the cost of construction, said the society spokesman.

It was also hoped that the general public will help raise $20,000 required as a basis for a Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation long-term loan needed to round off construction cost, he said.

The 26 suites for single persons at Banfield Lodge, which was built by the society six years ago, are rented to persons 65 years of age and older, for only $28 per month.

City Council

Apartment Zoning Up Today

Rezoning of 2½ acres of city-owned land at Quadra and Topaz to permit construction of garden apartments will be considered by city council at its meeting this afternoon.

Originally proposed last October when a developer made inquiries about buying the land for construction of a garden apartment, the rezoning bylaw was held up while city hall staff drafted new regulations.

The new regulations will also come before this afternoon's meeting. When the land is rezoned it will be advertised for sale. A second developer made inquiries about buying the site this week.

PUBLIC HEARING

A public hearing on the rezoning will be held this afternoon. Planning authorities favor the land use as a "buffer" between residential development in the north and commercial development around the Hillside-Quadra intersection.

A second public hearing today will consider rezoning of land in Victoria West, near West Bay, to allow construction of a multi-high rise project including a private marina.

Council also will give final passage to a bylaw creating stringent regulations to protect the present character of the inner harbor area.

The bylaw imposes setback restrictions on land fronting Government, Humboldt, Douglas and Belleville streets and blocks Canadian Pacific Railway plans to build specialty stores on the Empress Hotel property at the Humboldt-Government corner.

Other council business includes local improvement bylaws for Bay Street sidewalks.

Coroner's Jury

Hill Line Urged At Death Scene

Gordon Troy, 19, of 963 Sluggitt Road, died accidentally, a coroner's jury decided Wednesday.

He died 25 hours after a head-on crash on the Patricia Bay Highway last Thursday.

The jury attached a rider to the verdict calling for a double solid line all the way down Keating Hill between the southbound traffic passing lane and the single northbound lane.

Both cars were in the passing lane at the time of the accident.

The jury heard testimony from Dan Harwood, 4485 Blenkinsop, who was driving a truck southbound at the time of the accident, and Barry Slagboom, 8885 Marshall Road, who was following behind the Troy car.

It's No Mistake

The old and the new look like an engineer's mistake on Esquimalt Road at Admirals Road, but it's just more practical to put in new curb before taking out old one as in Esquimalt Road widening.

'You Must Be There'

Scots' Advice About Highland Games

From one Scot to another, "you must be there," is the urgent message by Victoria Scotsman Alex MacLeod-Baird for Saturday's Highland Games at MacDonald Park.

Mr. Baird said his motto for this year's games is: "Friends meet once a year—a handicap for an old acquaintance and a welcome for a new one..."

Competition entries have increased over those of last year, said the chairman of the Highland Games Association's finance committee and past president of the association.

Among the highlights: Canadian Scottish Regiment will play Lieutenant-Governor

Pearkes—who is escorted by association president William Marshall—to the platform. Chieftain Stuart Kennedy will escort "other notables."

Nine bands will participate in the grand march-past, among them bands from Portland, Seattle, Powell River, and the Seafarths from Vancouver.

For the first time in four years there will be an A-band and a B-band competition for pipers and drummers.

Entries stand at 25 for dancing and 13 for piping. Competitions start at 9 a.m., athletic events at 11 a.m., and official opening is slated for 2 p.m.

Morning Glory

Rummies Seeking 'Kick' Seeds

"Rummies" looking for cheap kicks attempted to buy morning glory seeds from a downtown seed store this week.

First customer who found four packets of the seeds on a display stand was served, but alerted by the Colonist story published Friday, personnel of the store took all the remaining seeds off the rack.

"We had quite a run on them for the two days," a spokesman said. "There were two more that afternoon and we had six or eight all told trying to buy them."

"We had several days of it and then the word got around that they were not available and that was that."

"That kind of person doesn't seem to care about the risk in eating things like that. They don't care about the risks so long as they get a lift."

Other seed stores checked yesterday said they had no would-be customers for morning glory seeds.

The Colonist story warned that United States addicts were buying varieties of morning glory seeds to eat. The seeds reportedly produced hallucinations similar to those produced by LSD-25, an experimental drug.

A following story warned that some morning glory seeds also contain ergot, a drug which constricts small blood vessels and could cause gangrene.

Both Royal Jubilee Hospital and St. Joseph's Hospital yesterday reported they had not handled any cases of morning glory seed poisoning.

U.S. Netters Hit Bonanza

Fairly Slim Pickings For Troll Fishermen

By HARVEY SHEPHERD

Troll fishermen encountered fairly slim pickings Wednesday in their first day of fishing in defiance of a strike by the independent United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union.

While United States net fishermen reaped a rich harvest in the Fraser River, teaming with sockeye in an unusually heavy and early run, a trollers' official said trollers off the West Coast of Vancouver Island are having a hard time finding fish.

Rennie Stanton, of Vancouver, secretary of the Pacific Trollers Association which has organized for some boats to pack fish from trollers to a Seattle buyer, said there were 900 to 900 boats fishing Wednesday—more than available packers could handle.

1,800 BOATS

He said there are some 1,800 boats who work out of Island west coast ports, and others were on the way from such ports as Victoria, Nanaimo and Vancouver.

There are some 3,000 trollers in B.C., including also those working out of northern ports such as Bull Harbor and Prince Rupert. The association has said it will try to organize fishing at other places besides the Island west coast.

"Everybody wants to fish," Mr. Stanton said last night. He said the association has found it necessary to restrict its packing service to trollers in the association.

There seemed to be still a fair number of troll boats tied up at Victoria Fishermen's Wharf last night, although certainly far fewer than last week.

However, two troll fishermen interviewed said they expected all but a very few to be gone by today.

The secretary-treasurer of the striking union, Homer Stevens,

Speaking the language of silence Const. Harwood makes sign asking reporter's name.

He Speaks Silently

Sign Language Useful

By BOB FETHICK

A Victoria city policeman has turned a somewhat unusual pastime into a useful communication medium he can use in courts and in police business, as well as for his own pleasure.

Const. Albert Harwood, with 17 years on the force to his credit, learned the language of silence when he was in hospital after a motorcycle accident.

The man on the next bed was also a motorcycleist and they found themselves on common ground.

One day a deaf mute visited the other man and they told jokes in sign language.

Curiosity got the best of Const. Harwood who missed out on the jokes. "By the time punchline was explained to me there wasn't much of a joke left. So I learned sign language," he said.

"I asked if he would teach me and he jumped at the chance. I think he was happy to be able to teach the language to a policeman."

From then on Const. Harwood met and counts among his friends a number of deaf mutes. His knowledge of the language has served useful on a number of occasions.

Once when two deaf mute children arrived in Victoria he was able to ask around and discovered where they lived.

Occasionally he is called on to help in things like purchases of cars or seeking legal advice.

Once he took part in a trial where there were two interpreters.

"I was translating evidence for a deaf mute. The man charged was a German, I think, and also needed an interpreter," he said.

More recently he appeared in city magistrate's court as interpreter for a man who was charged with theft. He found the man relaxed as soon as he realized there was a policeman who can speak the language.

Sign language is not too hard to learn according to Const. Harwood. There is a sign for each letter in the alphabet and some signs mean whole words.

Const. Harwood has one ambition in connection with his somewhat unusual study.

"Some day I'm going to go to that school (Jericho Hill) in Vancouver. They teach everything there. I'd like to see them in action."

Roads, Paths, Parking

Vital Phase Launched At Varsity

All-important second phase in the development of the University of Victoria's Gordon Head campus began yesterday with the calling of tenders for construction of roads, footpaths and car parking areas.

The roads will provide access to existing buildings and sites of future buildings including the science lecture theatre and the first of student residences which should go to tender in September.

Despite impressive progress already on the Gordon Head site, University planners have started the second phase before the first phase is completed.

LAID JULY 2

First-phase buildings still under construction are the science building and the library. Cornerstone of the library was laid July 2 as part of the ceremony marking the official foundation of the university.

The tenders called yesterday, including construction of the circular road around the heart of the campus and parking for some 900 cars, are returnable by 5 p.m. Aug. 6.

SPECIFICATIONS

Drawings and specifications are available from the supervising architect, R. W. Siddall Associates.

Site construction included in the tender was basically made possible for the University Development Board by the federal government's second look at the 1963 budget which exempted educational institutions from paying purchase tax on building materials.

TIGHT BUDGET

Operating on a tight budget, university officials feared the tax would prevent construction of the necessary roads. Exemption of the university from the purchase tax meant a saving of almost $70,000.

Access roads to the almost-completed science building are essential to allow installation of equipment including an astronomical dome which is en route to the university.

Completion of the first phase—finishing of the science building and the library—is scheduled for next summer. By that time phase two will be well under way.

BEING PREPARED

Specifications for the science lecture theatre and the first student residence are being prepared. The residence will be for some 75 women students and plans call for it to be completed by July, 1964.

Officials chose to build the first residence for women as they make up the bulk of out-of-town students at the university. Next residence will likely be for men.

Estimated cost of the second phase of development on the 200-acre campus at Gordon Head is $5,000,000.

Cruise Follows Wedding

Following a reception at Harbour House, Ganges, Mr. and Mrs. Jeremy Patrick Nele Hewett changed into yachting clothes, stepped aboard their sailboat and sailed away for a honeymoon cruise of the Gulf Islands.

The bride is the former Norma Shirley Garnett Smith, daughter of Mrs. Norma R. Smith, Victoria, and the late Mr. W. Smith. Mr. and Mrs. George Nele Hewett, Keelworth Court, Putney, London, England, are parents of the groom.

The marriage took place recently in St. Mark's Church, Ganges, with Rev. J. Leach officiating. Summer flowers filled the church for the afternoon wedding.

The bride chose an exquisite short-length dress of satin brocade, accented with a wide belt. A bolero over-jacket topped the skirt, which was gathered into unpressed pleats in the back. A circle of white satin roses held her shoulder-length veil of misty chiffon. She carried a cascade of white freesias, stephanotis and gardenias. The bride was given in marriage by her cousin, Mr. Philip L. Kenney of Vancouver.

Mrs. William Vogel, the only attendant, was in frock of white and pink printed organza over satin, styled with sweetheart neckline and pale pink cummerbund. Small pink rosebuds were in her hair and she carried a cascade bouquet of stephanotis and pink carnations.

Mr. William Vogel was best man and Mr. Michael Magrath acted as usher. Baskets of roses decorated the verandah and reception room of Harbour House. The bride's table was centred with a two-tiered cake surrounded with tulle and pink rosebuds. Mr. Andrew Bryant read telegrams and proposed the toast to the bride.

Mr. and Mrs. Hewett will make their home in Victoria.

Family Reunion

Reception at Vesuvius

GANGES, B.C.—A reception, honoring Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Britton on the occasion of their golden wedding anniversary, took place Friday afternoon at the Britton home, "Byewash House," Vesuvius Bay. Residents of the bay since 1944 their popularity was evidenced in the number of friends, including many from off-island, who called to offer congratulations.

Telegrams were received from all over North America, as well as the British Isles and included messages from Lieut. Governor

G. R. Pearkes; Prime Minister Lester Pearson; Premier W. A. C. Bennett; Recreation Minister

Earle Westwood and the mayor and council of Kamloops.

A beautiful arrangement of yellow roses and marguerites centred the tea table, a gift from Mr. and Mrs. Britton's son and two daughters, Mr. and Mrs. Courtney Britton and three children, Mrs. H. A. Sjoquist and Linda, Vancouver, and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Johnson and two children, Calgary, who were present for the happy occasion. Also present were Mrs. Britton's cousins, Mr. and Mrs. W. Gorman, Winnipeg; Mr. and Mrs. W. Oliphant and Mrs. Joyce Galvin, Victoria.

Pastel toned sweet peas, also a beautiful arrangement sent by Salt Spring Lands, Ltd., graced the reception rooms. Mr. and Mrs. Britton were married in Vermilion, Alberta, in 1913, moving to Kamloops in 1916 where Mr. Britton was employed by the CNR until his retirement in 1944 when they came to reside at Vesuvius Bay.

Buyers Ignore Heim

PARIS (UPI)—Designer Jacques Heim's long skirt bombshell is a dud, U.S. buyers say.

After Heim opened the fall-winter Paris fashion show, a cross-section of merchandising experts from New York indicated almost complete indifference.

The experts welcomed the new heavy lined walking suits and knee-high boots that are blossoming all over Paris could stand a skirt as long or two longer than usual.

But otherwise, the buyers said, they have no intention of stocking department stores this fall with longer skirts that will force a worldwide wardrobe overhaul.

that Man in the Kitchen

A sports columnist friend of mine introduced me to the Saskatoon berry the other day. It was a very happy meeting indeed and the pie which resulted was a most interesting experience.

There is quite a history to the Saskatoon berry; it grows in profusion on the banks of the Red and Assiniboine rivers. The Indians considered them a great delicacy and as a matter of fact used them in the making of pemmican, which was made from Buffalo meat (Rump) sliced thinly and dried in the sun. The dried meat was pounded and mixed with rendered fat and the berries and then preserved in a casing, either of animal hide or intestine.

The first settlers soon discovered the berries and many recipes evolved for jams, jellies and pies and of course they were "put down" in great quantities for use during the winter months.

The Saskatoon berry is a member of the Rosacea family, has a wonderful color and a tantalizing tartness. In making the pie I used a nine inch pie plate and made an open pie, a pastry base with a crisp-crust of pastry strips as a decoration. Three cups of berries made an ample filling and I added 1/2 cup of orange juice, 1/4 cup of sugar, the grated rind of one orange and dredged the filling with two tablespoons of flour. Baked in a moderate oven until the pastry was nicely browned the pie was a great success.

Some of the berries I consumed later with sugar and cream and found them good but not as appetizing as when cooked.

One of the most interesting things about the berries is that they reminded me somewhat of cranberries and it would seem to me that most of the recipes would apply and would give us much more mileage out of our cranberries when they are in season. So many people just think of Cranberry sauce and that's that. Why not try a Cranberry pie.

In making Cole-Slaw the other day I found that the addition of Shredded Strong Canadian Cheese made a wonderful difference. The result was excellent and the next day I made a

Perfume and Promises At Beauty Convention

By DELIA LANGE

MUNICH (DaD)—White, pale-blue and light green wide-brimmed silk hats could be seen floating in the colorful world of perfume and promises. "Be slender" a banner called on the right. "Longer eyelashes" another proudly displayed on the left.

And all of the lovely ladies with the stunning hats felt they were the living stars of this exhibit. Some 2,500 cosmeticians from 24 countries had come from all over the world to Munich to learn the latest in beauty culture.

"Back to nature" was the motto of the 17th International Convention for Beauty Culture and Cosmetology, and it was meant to be taken literally.

Among the ingredients of feminine beauty and youthful charm that were discussed in lectures and exhibited in the German Museum were some of the strangest things: pure wine, lactic acid, honey masks, snails' plegm, frogs' skins, caviar, ivy and briar pulp and even the umbilical cords of new-born animals.

Men's toilet articles made with whisky, seaweed masks and an electric manicure machine aroused considerable interest.

When nature alone is not sufficient, chemo-technical measures are taken. German surgeon Dr. Hans Bruck reported on his latest results in plastic breast surgery. The physician holds the purely fashionable, outward devices to be inadequate as they do not give the woman what she so directly needs — inner security.

Treatment with hormones is dangerous and not advisable as too little is known about possible side-effects. Dr. Bruck implants a foam sponge beneath the skin that is biologically endurable and keeps its form well. The incision is made just below the breast, the scar is invisible or nearly so.

Dr. Junichi-Uchida of Japan reached the same results by injecting a liquid mass. His pictures on this subject created a sensation in Munich.

"Cosmetics come from the Greek word kosmos," France's Dr. Charles Baud reminded the assembly. It was the cosmetician's duty to preserve and restore neatness and harmony in a person's outward appearance.

Mr. and Mrs. H. L. A. Minchin, 462 Sturdee Street, announce the engagement of their daughter, Antonia Judith Bauer, to Mr. David William Robbie, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Robbie, 1143 Cobble Road. The wedding will take place Aug. 31 at 7 p.m. in St. Paul's Naval and Garrison Church.—(Jim-Rite)

Ann

Landers

Dear Ann Landers: It happened again last evening. I swore the next time it happened I would write to you and try to find out what is the matter with this woman.

My wife is a college graduate and the mother of three healthy, normal children. She holds a high office in one of the women's shops and is considered bright by our friends. Yet, whenever I go to the refrigerator to get ice cubes I find empty trays. Why in heaven's name would anybody want to return a tray without water to the freezing compartment? And, after all, Ann, how long does it take to run water in an ice-tray?

If you can explain this to me I will be immensely grateful.—TOTALLY MYSTIFIED.

Dear Mystified: Why do some people leave lights burning—on throw a coat on a chair when it would take only seconds to flip a light switch or to hang the coat up? Because it's easier—and some people always take the easy way out.

If this bugs you, appoint yourself Keeper of the Ice Cube Trays and check them every evening. It's better than epilepsy.

Dear Ann Landers: Our mother drinks. I don't mean just a cocktail at parties. I mean all by herself—during the afternoon. Sometimes the woman next door comes in and they get crooked together.

When my sisters and I come home from school, Mom is usually in terrible shape. Most days she doesn't make the beds or clean the house. We have to do the housework or it doesn't get done. Then I go to the market and beg for credit so I can have dinner on the table when Dad comes home.

The weird part of the story is that Mom will not admit she drinks. She says she has a headache or gall bladder trouble or dizzy spells from high blood pressure.

We notice in your column that you sometimes suggest Alcoholics Anonymous for problem drinkers. How can we get them to send a member over to talk to Mom? Please help us.—DISPERATE KIDS.

Dear Kids: Alcoholics Anonymous will send a member to talk to an alcoholic only if the person who needs help will admit he is an alcoholic and asks for the intervention of A.A.

Your mother, unfortunately, does not qualify.

Married at Sooke

Knox Presbyterian Church, Sooke, was the scene of a marriage that united Patricia Jean Shambrook and Mr. Carl Wayne Stoltz. Rev. Alan Beaton officiated for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Shambrook, Otter Point Road, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Stoltz, Milner Landing.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, chose a white ballerina-length gown with misty, shoulder-length veil. She carried red roses and for something old she wore her maternal grandmother's wedding ring.

Miss Linda Rose Shambrook, the bride's youngest sister, was bridesmaid in a pale green, ballerina-length frock complemented with white accessories.

Mr. Robert Eddy was best man and Mr. Ronald Shambrook and Mr. Leslie Eve ushers.

At a reception held at the groom's parents' home, Mr. Donald Harnish, of Parksville, the bride's brother-in-law, proposed the toast. Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Eve, Vancouver; Mr. and Mrs. Donald Harnish and Mr. and Mrs. George Shambrook, of Alberni.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Matcham, 3924 Quadra Street, announce the engagement of their only daughter, Dorothy May, to Mr. Keith Donald Kupitz, son of Mrs. Stella Kupitz, 467 Davida Avenue, and the late Mr. William Kupitz. The wedding will take place Aug. 17 at 8 p.m. in St. Mark's Anglican Church, with Rev. Canon Robert Willis officiating. Mrs. W. Dakers of Richmond, B.C., will be matron of honor. Miss Louise Johnston of Vancouver bridesmaid and Miss Cathy Thompson, the bride-elect's cousin from Portland, junior bridesmaid. Mr. Donald Goldstone will be best man and Mr. James Jackson and Mr. Toby Hird will usher.—(Campbell Studio)

Sweeper Gets Wish

NEW YORK (AP)—A London street cleaner is going to get his wish. He has permission to sweep Times Square.

The unusual request came from Snowey Tobin, who has a hobby of brushing important squares in cities throughout the world.

He claims to have swept every important square in London and several abroad, including Red Square in Moscow last year.

On his regular job, he has been sweeping Westminster Bridge and the road beneath Big Ben for 13 years.

Tobin wrote Mayor Robert Wagner and told him he would like to give Times Square a going-over after he arrives here Sept. 1 on a vacation trip. He saved for 17 years for the vacation.

The mayor extended him a "heartily welcome" to assist in New York's clean city program. He will be given a special broom to perform the job.

Music Soothes

CHICAGO (UPI)—A marketing expert suggested Wednesday elderly citizens should learn to play musical instruments.

"Music can give great solace to elders," said E. B. Wins. "It can offer great ego-satisfaction and is fine therapy."

MONTREAL (UPI)—A crown prosecutor charged Wednesday that a 22-year-old Montreal woman, on the pretence of helping an unwed mother, seized her child and sold it in the U.S.

"The mother has not seen her child since," crown attorney Rene Drouin said, in opposing bail for Mrs. Pauline Laurence during her arraignment on an abduction charge.

The judge granted property bail of $3,000 after defence lawyer Paul Aubut claimed the Bill of Rights had been violated because his client had been held in custody since last Thursday.

Provincial police said that on July 14, Mrs. Laurence went to Sacred Heart hospital to help an unwed mother and her infant return home. Part way home, the accused ordered the taxi driver to stop, grabbed the child from its mother's arms and jumped out of the cab, police said.

Preliminary hearing was set for next Tuesday.

The Bergen public library in Norway has a 2,000-volume library ship to serve farmers and fishermen living in isolated fjord districts.

Her pride and joy, though, are a number of small blue snail shells brought up last year by a commercial drag fishing boat from a depth of 250 fathoms, some 45 miles off Estevan Point on the west coast of the island.

Experts were unable to agree on what the little blue shells were.

Harold Rehder, curator of the division of molluscs at the Smithsonian Institution, thought the shells were Margarites nuda Dall, which has hitherto not been found north of Monterey, Calif.

Seagoing Bread Truck Lassoed and Landed

VANCOUVER (CP)—"Do you have a Seaboard bread truck aboard?" Capt. Ted Wilson of the tug Island Challenger radioed the CFB ferry Princess of Vancouver as she came into her wharf here.

"Yes," replied the ferry.

"Not any more," Capt. Wilson called back as he steered toward the truck which had burst through nylon rope barriers on the ferry's car deck and dropped into Vancouver harbor.

The truck, buoyant because of its empty freight compartment, floated away from the tug. Eventually, however, the tug crew managed to get a line around it and towed it to the CFB dock where a crane pulled it out.

The CFB said the truck had jumped its chocks during a tight turn by the ferry and had rolled forward 30 feet before dropping over the stern.

Sea Shells Indicate California in B.C.

By JACK FRY

Sea shell collectors from the U.S. are finding rich hunting grounds on Vancouver Island shorelines — and a Washington State woman found a shell which even the experts can't identify.

Mrs. Eleanor Duggan of Everett, an amateur collector who spent a week here gathering sea shells from the beaches, will take home iridescent abalone shells found near Ogden Point breakwater, and a variety of other species of molluscs.

State Cracks Down On Son of Judge

NEW YORK (UPI)—The state of New York Wednesday revoked the driver's licence of a judge's son who was a key figure in an accident that killed five persons.

Three weeks ago Gareth Martinis, 23, was charged with several charges by a panel of judges that sit with his father. The judges' decision raised a storm of public protest.

William Hults, state motor vehicles commissioner, revoked Martinis' licence within minutes after a hearing yesterday into the traffic deaths conducted by a referee for the motor vehicle department.

Martinis, son of criminal court Judge Joseph Martinis, ignored a subpoena and did not appear at the hearing.

On July 1, three other criminal judges charged Martinis of charges of drunken driving, reckless driving and leaving the scene of an accident.

New Bluenose Recalls Saga Of Great Ship

By LESLIE COMEN

LUNenburg, N.S. (UPI)—Launching of Bluenose II Wednesday at this historic fishing port, brought back memories of the greatest of all Canadian sailing ships, the Bluenose, which slid down the same ways 42 years ago.

To Canadians, the famed racer was undisputed queen of the North Atlantic fishing fleet and a "highliner" of the salt-banker fleet.

Perhaps forgotten down through the years and the launching of a second Bluenose, was Bluenose's greatest prize of all—the saving of her crew of 30 from the treacherous sand bars of Sable Island, the "graveyard of the Atlantic" off the Nova Scotia coast.

It was in April, 1926, when Bluenose, an ordinary "work-horse" with the fleet, encountered a gale force storm.

Captain Angus Walters, her fiery skipper and now honorary captain of Bluenose II, recalled that the seas swept the schooner forwards toward the sand bars, broke the anchor cable, smashed 14 stanchions, and carried away part of the bulwarks.

The only way out was to beat to windward. And it was under these seemingly impossible weather conditions that Bluenose showed her mettle—the ability to head up to windward into the eye of a storm.

"She kept heading up, biting her way into the gale; don't know as any other vessel could have done it," Captain Walters said. "All you could do was to keep her going and hang on."

After seven hours, the wind hauled to the northwest but that again ended the chance of getting to the inside of the island.

"But it was luck for us," the skipper recalled, "because it hauled enough so we could tack ship and let it drive us back far enough outside to clear the south coast and get in the open."

Bluenose was a great racer, a highliner of the fishing fleet and a goodwill ambassador. She cheated death on treacherous Sable but the sea finally caught up with her—30 years later on the reefs of Haiti.

Commons Roars —But Not John D

OTTAWA (UPI) — The name of Britain's society osteopath, Dr. Stephen Ward, sparked laughter in the Commons Wednesday in connection with a portrait he did of opposition leader John Diefenbaker.

Liberal John Green (Renfrew-South) asked the government if it intended to appropriate funds for the National Gallery to purchase Ward's portrait of Diefenbaker done in 1961 when he was prime minister.

The Commons roared with laughter on all sides, but Diefenbaker sat unmoving.

NAT FOR WARD

The Diefenbaker portrait was among those of other prime ministers who sat for Ward during a Commonwealth prime ministers' conference in London.

The portrait went on display in a London exhibition of Ward's paintings being sold to raise money for his defence against vice charges.

The picture of the former prime minister was bought for $750 by Ross Henderson, who said he bought it because he wanted "to make sure it didn't fall into the hands of political gangsters."

Won't Buy

New Zealand's Prime Minister Keith Holyoake said Wednesday he is "definitely not interested" in buying the Stephen Ward portrait of him on sale in London. He smiled and said he was "flattered" the price was $787, more than the Diefenbaker portrait brought.

LONDON (UPI) — Two prostitutes testified at the vice trial of Dr. Stephen Ward Wednesday that the society osteopath had served as their procurer.

One said she never got any money out of the doctor, that Ward kept all that was paid for her services both in normal sexual intercourse and in whipping male pervers who preferred such flagellation.

The testimony reduced to the sordid bottom the trial of Ward on a charge of living off the earnings of a stable of prostitutes headed by Christine Keeler, 21, and Marilyn (Mandy) Rice-Davies, 18.

Behind it all was the sex-and-security scandal which has tarnished the names of former war minister John Profumo, the third Viscount Astor and actor-businessman Douglas Fairbanks Jr. with implications that others in London's high life are involved.

The government even now is inquiring into security matters relating to Christine, who was sleeping alternately in 1961 with Profumo and Soviet naval attaché Yevgeny Ivanov.

Three girls were called to testify at the trial Wednesday by prosecutor Mervyn Griffith-Jones.

One Line, One Kiss Mandy's Film Role

LONDON (UPI) — Marilyn (Mandy) Rice-Davies has a one-line, one-kiss role in a new movie, Hide and Seek, starring comedian Ian Carmichael. The Daily Mirror said Wednesday that in the film, to be released later this year, Mandy kisses Carmichael and recites: "I told him I may be rich and dishonest, but I still have my pride."

name is Margaret Richardson, up Vicky's story and said Ward repudiated her earlier testimony at a preliminary hearing in which she had related sundry experiences in Ward's apartment. She said this was false and she wanted to retract.

In a charge subsequently denied from the witness box by Detective Chief Inspector Samuel Herbert of Scotland Yard, Miss Ricardo, 22, declared police had threatened to take away her baby and her young sister unless she provided evidence against Ward.

Mr. Justice Archie Marshall said he would deal later with her case, apparent perjury.

The full weight of the prosecution case came with the next witness, Vicky Barrett, 20. Her right name is Janet Barker. She is a convicted prostitute. She said Ward picked her up in 1961 and arranged perhaps as many as 30 bedtime escapades with various men. Ward got all the money, she said.

In addition, she said, she had on occasion whipped men with a cane or a horsewhip that Ward provided. For that "the market price was £1 ($3) a stroke," she testified.

Vicky's roommate, Brenda O'Neill, 21, a prostitute, backed up Vicky's story and said Ward had picked her up as well.

Miss O'Neill, a brunette with tattoo marks on her left arm, said Ward "hired" her on one occasion, the object being sex.

Herbert also testified that Ward told him he had borrowed money and obtained the use of a cottage on the Astor estate at Cliveden in return for osteopathic services to Astor and his staff.

England Beats The Heat

LONDON (UPI) — The London Daily Mail, noting that Tuesday's 89 degrees marked the city's hottest day since September of 1961, chided "These clever Americans" who predicted a cold and rainy July for Britain.

And in Birchington, a farmer drove his tractor into the English Channel to cool off.

Boys' Killing Described

'I Told Him to Say His Last Prayers'

QUEBEC (CP)—A 43-year-old paroled rapist Wednesday described how he killed four boys after sexually attacking them and then was found criminally responsible for their deaths by a coroner's jury.

Leopold Dion, 43, confessed he killed the four boys "because I didn't want to go back to penitentiary."

Crown Prosecutor Jean Bienvenue said Dion will be arraigned today on charges of capital murder in all four slayings.

Dion was paroled last fall after serving 17 years of a life sentence for rape.

It took the jury two minutes to return the verdict after Dion had testified in detail for 2½ hours.

Dion's testimony about he lured the boys numbered the courtroom and left relatives weeping.

There were 69 provincial policemen, 20 of them in the courtroom and the others outside, to prevent any possible outbreaks. Dion said that he told all four boys that he was a photographer for an American magazine. He picked them up in his car, drove them around town, then took them to Portneuf County, about 25 miles west of here.

Any charges against Dion will be decided on by the attorney-general's department of Quebec, where charges in cases of violent death are not lodged until after an inquest.

Shortly before Dion told his story Wednesday night, his case was discussed briefly in the Commons at Ottawa where Donald MacDonald, parliamentary secretary for justice, declined to disclose details of how he was released.

No Reasons Given

Dr. Guy Marcoux (left) SC-Quebec Montmorency wanted to know who recommended the parole, and Mr. MacDonald said the Parole Board cannot discuss its reasons for liberating convicts.

Mr. MacDonald said the parole board has full powers to grant conditional releases and has exclusive jurisdiction.

He said no more detailed statement could be given until "justice had taken its course" in Dion's case. There would be no investigation of how the board paroles convicts.

The justice department could only express its deepest sympathy to the families of the four dead boys.

Three weeks ago, parole board chairman G. T. Street said Dion had been freed after "a favorable psychiatric report."

Dion broke down several times. Each time he described the death of the boys, his voice cracked and he shuddered.

Handcuffed to two husky guards, Dion, a powerful, five-foot-ten 200-pounder, was led to the witness box while relatives of the dead boys watched.

After describing how he sexually attacked and then strangled Guy Tremblay 22, 15, and 14, Dion said he did it because "I didn't want him to tell anybody, because I would have to go back to penitentiary."

He then put his head in his hands and sobbed.

"I told him to say his last prayers, that I didn't want to keep him from going to heaven," he said. There were sobs from the back of the courtroom.

Had No Choice

"I told him I had no choice," Dion testified. "He said 'let me go and I won't tell' but even if he meant it then a 12-year-old boy couldn't have been depended on."

He testified he had no sexual satisfaction from any of the boys.

There was a five-minute adjournment to allow Dion to regain composure.

When he returned, he said he had given the Luckenluch boy at least two minutes to pray.

"He seemed to be praying," Dion testified. "I squeezed as hard as possible so he wouldn't suffer."

Dion then told how Sunday, May 5, he met Michel Morel, 9, and Alain Carrier, 11, on the Plains of Abraham in Quebec City.

He attracted them with his box camera. He took them to an abandoned house near Port Rouge, 20 miles west of Quebec, and up to an attic room in which he sometimes lived.

He said that at one point he heard a car outside and found that a family was about to picnic on the yard near the house.

He told them it was private property and they drove away.

Then he went back to the attic and talked the boys into posing for pictures, giving them a couple of pairs of shorts to be used instead of bathing suits.

They believed he worked for a film company. His voice breaking again, Dion said he decided to separate the boys. He sent one to his car to listen to the radio, then tied the other to the bed.

When it became evident what he wished, he said, each boy refused. He said Michel Morel, told he was going to be killed, said a Hall Mary and an Act of Contrition aloud.

Says Russia:

China Red Enemy

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet defence ministry Wednesday denounced the Red Chinese as "enemies" who are trying to incite the Soviet people against the Communist party and shake their confidence in the Kremlin leadership.

It was the first time since the bitter Sino-Soviet ideological dispute erupted that the Communist Chinese were publicly branded "enemies" of the U.S.S.R.

The attack came in Communist of the Armed Forces, the official monthly publication of the defence ministry.

"Our enemies well understand that the strength of the party lies in its unity with the masses and the strength of the people lies in the leadership for which reason they are aiming their poisoned ideological arrows principally at the party," the magazine said.

Owner of 230-foot yacht Daniel Ludwig, 68, has bought 1,340,000 shares of Union Oil Co. of California stock for $100,500,000 as a personal investment, according to New York Herald Tribune. He is reported to have a personal fortune of $350,000,000.

Attorney-General Instructs RCMP:

LAY CHARGES IN TOLL CASE

By TERRY HAMMOND

An RCMP official said yesterday the force has received instructions from the attorney-general's department to lay charges in connection with alleged toll thefts at the government ferry service terminal in Nanaimo.

Inspector George McKay, officer commanding the Vancouver Island sub-division, told the Colonist yesterday that instructions to proceed with the laying of charges had been sent to the Nanaimo RCMP detachment.

But a Nanaimo RCMP official said the word had not yet arrived.

ONE INDIVIDUAL

Insp. McKay expected the charges to be laid today, or Friday. He said only one individual will be charged.

Decision to lay charges in the case came after RCMP conducted an intensive investigation into operations at the Nanaimo terminal.

PROMINENT FAMILY

The police investigation was launched after former terminal manager Jack Washer, 42, charged that a toll-taker who had admitted thefts to ferry service officials was being protected from prosecution because he came from a prominent Nanaimo family.

Mr. Washer was fired from his job last month for failing to give adequate supervision—a charge that arose from discovery of alleged thefts.

APPEAL AUG. 12

Meanwhile, a civil service commission spokesman said yesterday the ex-terminal manager's appeal against dismissal will be heard on Aug. 12.

The hearing will be conducted before the full commission consisting of chairman Dr. Hugh Morrison, deputy welfare minister Ray Rickinson and deputy municipal affairs minister Everett Brown.

FINAL APPEAL

If Washer is not satisfied with the commission's ruling he can make a final appeal to a civil service board of reference which would have to be specially set up by cabinet order.

A ferry service investigation into the alleged toll thefts by one of the terminal's collectors was weeks old when the former terminal manager brought the case into the open with an exclusive Colonist interview.

NOT INFORMED

He said he had been fired following an investigation by ferry service security personnel which he had not been informed about beforehand.

The probe should have been made by the RCMP, he claimed at the time.

He said a collector had been fired by the ferry service after interviews with officials.

NO CHARGES

The officials, he charged, had assured the collector no charges would be laid if he signed a statement admitting toll thefts. Mr. Washer estimated the thefts at thousands of dollars and said the toll collecting system was at fault.

Lack of a proper ticketing system was an "invitation to theft," he claimed.

CLOSE SATURDAY

Premier Bennett, chairman of the B.C. Toll Authority, indicated following Washer's charges that a close scrutiny was being given the collection system and that changes might be made if a better procedure could be evolved.

New, Big Wheat Deal Set with Red China?

WINNIPEG (UPI)—Negotiations have been completed between Canada and Communist China for a big wheat deal, estimated at about $150,000,000, unconfirmed reports said here Wednesday. The last Canadian sale of wheat to China was last fall when terms were announced for 34,000,000 bushels amounting to about $65,000,000.

UN Commission Expels Portugal

GENEVA (Reuters)—The United Nations Economic and Social Council expelled Portugal from the economic commission for Africa Wednesday, but failed to reach a decision on South African membership in the regional body.

'Unite With Reds'

MOSCOW (AP)—Premier Khrushchev has promised Africans a quick end to colonial regimes on their continent if they unite and join the Communist camp. In a message Wednesday to governments which participated in the recent African summit conference at Addis Ababa, Khrushchev said "fighters for national independence" could count on practical assistance from the Soviet Union.

The council agreed to defer further debate on South Africa until later in the session, due to end next week.

South African Premier Hendrik Verwoerd said in Cape Town last week his country had decided to leave the commission because of the "hostility now being demonstrated by the African states."

SEVEN TO ZERO

The decision to expel Portugal was taken by seven votes to zero with 11 abstentions in the 18-member council.

The resolution proposing the move was sponsored by Ethiopia and Senegal, whose delegate accused Portugal of carrying out a "vast genocide campaign" against her African subjects.

Suspend Portugal Ghana Tells UN

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—A Ghanaian told the United Nations security council Wednesday it should suspend Portugal from UN membership unless Portugal acts by mid-September to end alleged repression in Angola.

Portugal denied there was such repression in its African colony and invited four African cabinet ministers present to go to Angola and Mozambique, see things for themselves and talk with the Portuguese about African problems.

Their speeches highlighted the third day of the 11-nation council debate on the situation in Portuguese African territories, started by request of 32 African countries.

Ghanaian chief delegate Alex Quaison-Sackey accused Portugal of ignoring the council's 1962 resolution calling on her to "desist forthwith from repressive measures" in Angola, then the scene of a rebellion.

In Two Days

Ward Art Show Ordered Shut

LONDON (UPI)—Dr. Stephen Ward's art show was to be given 48 hours to close today.

A London County Council order charged the Museum Street gallery which is exhibiting the works broke a building law. It gave the gallery owners two days to apply for a licence or face a summons.

There are 145 portraits by Ward on sale at the gallery for a total of $30,400. The proceeds will go to pay for Ward's defence against vice charges. (See Page 35.)

Since the show opened two days ago 1,500 persons paid five shillings (70 cents) each to see it. Seventeen paintings were sold for about $2,000 ($8,400).

Robert Katz, one of the gallery's two directors, said he is taking legal advice.

"We will fight," Katz said. "This is bureaucracy gone mad."

Among the portraits on show at the exhibition are those of Prince Philip, Princess Margaret, Premier Khrushchev and Archbishop Makarios. A portrait of former prime minister John Diefenbaker was bought by a Canadian.

Cause, Effect

Of two picket lines in the U.S. yesterday, one was protesting and the other was promoting.

A Negro man and a white woman (above) joined hands in a muddy street in an effort to prevent supply trucks from entering a construction site in Brooklyn.

Police pulled the pair apart and carried them to a waiting patrol wagon. Police arrested 12 pickets at the site where they are seeking more building trade jobs for Negroes and Puerto Ricans. Shapely girls (left) in abbreviated costumes picketed a theatre in downtown Chicago, but they weren't protesting anything—it was merely a publicity stunt. (AP Photos)

Lions Roar Through Riders Look Good in 40-0 Trouncing

VANCOUVER — B.C. Lions turned a veritable offensive and some exciting rookie strength into a 40-0 rout of Saskatchewan Roughriders in a Wednesday night exhibition football game played in Empire Stadium before 18,240 fans.

It was the second win in as many exhibition games for a B.C. club which looked last night as it may at last be ready to seriously challenge for the Western Conference championship.

Starting slowly but obviously in command all the way after the Riders had made a faint threat after taking the opening kickoff, the Lions led by 6-0 after one quarter, by 12-0 at half time, and then turned it in the second half for an impressive victory.

Coach Duke Skrien gave all of his players a chance to prove themselves, and no matter what lineup he put on the field it seemed to be able to do the job last night.

Lions gave all four of their quarterbacks a chance to play, and all managed to put points on the scoreboard.

Regular Joe Kapp played the first and third quarters, and the Lions were completely dominant under his leadership. He marched them 76 yards in 11 plays for the first touchdown. In the third quarter, when the Lions had the ball for all but about two minutes, Kapp engineered two more major scores as the Lions added 10 first downs to their total.

Kapp wound up with 11 completions in 14 passes and a 20-yard gain of his own as he proved he could run if he so desired.

Standby Mel Melin had the longest time of the signal-calling quartet, and finally had to leave the game in the last half of the second quarter, shaken up when tackled hard. But before he left the Lions had boosted their lead to 24-0 on a 29-yard field goal by rookie Pete Kempf.

Canadian-veteran Earl Keeley finished the second quarter for Melin and Kempf kicked a 31-yard three-pointer when Keeley couldn't get the Lions moving.

BOOSTS SCORE
But Keeley was back at the start of the fourth quarter with the Lions holding a 36-0 lead. He promptly boosted the score to 33-0 in a touchdown march which featured a good run by himself and a pass to Kempf.

With the score getting out of hand, Skrien sent in some of his defensive specialists on offense. Rookie-Canadian Pete Olier was given a chance to quarterback. He didn't waste any time. Norris Stevenson gave him 17 yards in one run, then he threw to Kempf in the end zone for the Lions' fifth touchdown.

ALMOST ANOTHER
And when the game ended, the Lions were only three yards away from a sixth. Kempf's touchdown catch eliminated a great evening for the UBC student who was signed only to do the place-kicking for the Lions.

He hit for two long field goals and converted four of the five touchdowns to rack up 16 points. His only convert miss was the result of a low snap which enabled the Riders to block his kick.

ONE EACH
Stevenson, Sonny Homer, Don Vico and By Bailey accounted for the other points by each scoring a touchdown.

Lions played without fullback Nub Beamer and Jim Carpin and tackle Lonnie Dennis. All are regular stars, but they weren't missed last night as the Lions gave Skrien some big problems for cut-down time by their standout individual and team efforts.

Everything came up roses for the Lions. Not only did Kempf strongly indicate he'll do as the place-kicker but Neal Beaumont looked like the real goods as a punter with a 42.6-yard average for five kicks.

Mack Burton got into action and caught a pass. Stevenson ran for big yardage to look like a capable substitute for Tom Larche, rookie Canadian-halfback Bill Lasseter continued to look like a big find and the acknowledged regulars have seldom been better.

As a club the Lions were all but impregnable against running and they intercepted four passes with corner-linemen Norm Fieldgate returning one interception 40 yards and middle-guard Tom Brown lumbering 33 yards with another. And even without Beamer and Willie Fleming and Kapp playing only half the game, an imaginative offence ran up 433 yards.

Missed Convert Wins for Argos

TORONTO (CP)—A missed convert in the last minute of play Wednesday night gave Toronto Argonauts a 21-20 decision over Edmonton Eskimos in an exhibition football game played before 22,181 perspiring fans.

In a game which featured four long touchdown plays, the Eskimos could on Canadian veteran Don Getty late in the fourth quarter after the Argos had taken a 21-14 lead.

CONVERT HURRIED
Getty moved the Eskimos 92 yards in short order with John Thomas going the last 49 yards, most of it with some shifty running, after taking a pass from Getty. But Argos put a big rush on Tommy-Joe Coffey and the hurried convert attempt was off target. The last touchdown came with only 51 seconds left.

Argos had taken the lead in the sixth minute of the final quarter when rookie-quarterback Lynn Amedee, from Louisiana State University, raced 70 yards for a touchdown. He broke free through the middle after taking a couple of handoffs.

GRAB FUMBLE
Both clubs had taken the lead once in the first three quarters. Don Stevenson grabbed a first-quarter fumble to ramble 33 yards for the Eskimos, who went ahead, 7-0, on Coffey's convert.

Argos then clambered out in front with two second-quarter touchdowns, both set up by Edmonton errors.

Thomas dropped a punt on his own 19-yard line, two plays later Dick Shatto pitched an 18-yard pass to Dave Mann in the end zone.

Then an interception gave the Argos another chance, and Art Johnson went the last eight yards on the fourth play. George Fleming converted each time to put Argos ahead, 14-7.

Import-halfback Joe Hernandez, one of the players traded in the deal which brought Jackie Parker to the Argos, raced 45 yards for a score in the third quarter to highlight a fine performance against his former teammates. Coffey converted to tie at 14-14 and set the stage for that fourth-quarter windup.

LIMPS OFF
Parker started for Argos but limped off the field after two plays, obviously not yet recovered from training camp injuries. Eskimos used four quarterbacks in their continuing search for a replacement for Parker—rookie James Earl Wright, holdover Jim Walden and MC Reynolds in addition to Getty.

Rocks Lose In Sad Way To Vancouver

By ROBIN JEFFREY
There are worse things than losing lacrosse games.

One of them is not doing your best. The old cliché, "the college try," still applies.

Victoria Shamrocks forgot this last night and took a 15-1 drubbing from Vancouver in what most of the 1,780 fans thought was the worst Inter-City Lacrosse League game in Memorial Arena this year.

Shamrocks looked tired and short-handed (which they were) in the first quarter as Vancouver built up a 2-0 lead on goals by Wayne Pecknold and Bill Chisholm.

Rocks did make an effort in the second period and held a slight edge in play over the mainlanders. The Victoria effort was only going one way however and Vancouver rattled in four more goals.

The third and fourth quarters were nothing short of agony to watch as Vancouver tried to preserve the shutout for goalie Merv Schweitzer and Victoria did their best to help.

Top Doubles Duo Sent to Sidelines

Featured action was in the men's doubles yesterday as play reached the quarter-finals in the 66th annual B.C. Lawn Tennis Championships currently in progress at The Racquet Club of Victoria.

Biggest upset of the tournament saw the first-seeded pairing of Horst Ritter and Rod Kop, from West Germany and Hawaii, respectively, bounced out of competition by the unseeded Bob Sherman of Los Angeles and Frank Nock of the University of Illinois. Score was 6-3, 3-6, 6-2.

However, the most interesting action came in a match between the fourth-seeded Portland pair of Jim Jackson and Larry Doyle and the unseeded Bob Stock of Grunsky Centre, Iowa, and Reed Witt of Mill Valley, Calif.

Jackson and Doyle finally made it, but it took them 42 games before they finally took the first set, 2-20. They went on to take the second set, 6-4. Margo Hedges of Salt Lake City, first-seeded in both the ladies' doubles and singles, advanced in each competition. She defeated Joan Parby of the host club, 6-0, 6-1, in the singles.

Moving right along with Miss Hedges in the singles was second-seeded Ann Heck of Del Mar, Calif. She defeated Bernice Parrish of Victoria, 6-3, 6-0.

Third-seeded Jack Neer of Portland advanced in the men's singles with a 6-2, 6-2 win over Jack Wallen of San Diego. And the first-seeded pair of Diana Gai of Oakland and Kop moved ahead in the mixed doubles.

TODAY'S DRAW:
12:00—Ritter vs Sherman, Stock vs Neer, Hedges vs Gai, Parby vs Heck, Parrish vs Wallen, Kop vs Witt.

GOLF WINNERS:
Mrs. J. Riddell and Mrs. W. More won the Uplands Golf Club Tombstone Competition on the 18th hole Tuesday.

Creamery

Duncan Opening Opposed

DUNCAN—Sixteen taxpayers last week asked for opposition to an anticipated reopening of the Cowichan Creamery Association poultry processing plant near Garden and Queens Streets at a special council meeting.

The taxpayers, residents of Garden and Queens Streets, said they fear the processing plant would be noisy, smelly and would create a traffic congestion.

The creamery has not yet officially applied for reopening of the plant.

The plant was built in 1959 at a cost of $45,000.

The Duncan city solicitor in a letter to the creamery recently said there would be no objection to reopening of the plant under the existing bylaws provided the operators of the plant observed them.

The taxpayers also said the plant would attract rats, flies, dogs and cats, and would pose a health threat.

Morning Glory

Rummies Seeking 'Kick' Seeds

"Rummies" looking for cheap kicks attempted to buy morning glory seeds from a downtown seed store this week.

First customer who found four packets of the seeds on a display stand was served, but alerted by the Colonist story published Friday, personnel of the store took all the remaining seeds off the rack.

"We had quite a run on them for the two days," a spokesman said. "There were two more that afternoon and we had six or eight all told trying to buy them."

"We had several days of it and then the word got around that they were not available and that was that."

"That kind of person doesn't seem to care about the risk in eating things like that. They don't care about the risks as long as they get a lift."

Other seed stores checked yesterday said they had no would-be customers for morning glory seeds.

The Colonist story warned that United States addicts were buying varieties of morning glory seeds to eat. The seeds reportedly produced hallucinations similar to those produced by LSD-25, an experimental drug. A following story warned that some morning glory seeds also contain ergot, a drug which constricts small blood vessels and could cause gangrene.

Both Royal Jubilee Hospital and St. Joseph's Hospital yesterday reported they had not handled any cases of morning glory seed poisoning.

U.S. Netters Hit Bonanza

Fairly Slim Pickings For Troll Fishermen

By HARVEY SHEPHERD

Troll fishermen encountered fairly slim pickings Wednesday in their first day of fishing in defiance of a strike by the independent United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union.

While United States net fishermen reaped a rich harvest in the Fraser River, teeming with sockeye in an unusually heavy and early run, a trollers' official said trollers off the West Coast of Vancouver Island are having a hard time finding fish.

Rennie Stanton, of Vancouver, secretary of the Pacific Trollers Association which has organized for some boats to pack fish from trollers to a Seattle buyer, said there were 800 to 900 boats fishing Wednesday—more than available packers could handle.

He said there are some 1,800 boats who work out of Island west coast ports, and others were on the way from such ports as Victoria, Nanaimo and Vancouver.

There are some 3,000 trollers in B.C., including also those working out of northern ports such as Bull Harbor and Prince Rupert. The association has said it will try to organize fishing at other places besides the Island west coast.

"Everybody wants to fish," Mr. Stanton said last night. He said the association has found it necessary to restrict its packing service to trollers in the association.

There seemed to be still a fair number of troll boats tied up at Victoria Fishermen's Wharf last night, although certainly far fewer than last week.

However, two troll fishermen interviewed said they expected all but a very few to be gone by today.

The secretary-treasurer of the striking union, Homer Stevens, last night said, however, he did not believe many of the trollers would follow the Pacific Trollers Association leaders.

The union has been highly

ISLAND RURAL

Wet Hay Problem Licked

By KLAUS MUENTER

COWICHAN—More than during other years, the unpredictable 1963 summer with frequent rain harasses dairy farmers on Vancouver Island, but some of them have found a partial solution to the problem of wet hay.

At least six operators in the Cowichan Valley have been using hay conditioning equipment and at least three agree hay conditioning is a considerable help and cuts haying time in half.

The mechanism of a hay conditioning machine works on a simple principle: The stems of the grass are crushed, allowing the moisture to evaporate much more quickly than if they are left whole.

Secret of the entire operation is rubber rollers. Although the initial cost of about $1,000 appears high, it saves much grief and in the long run money, unless farmers rely on other sources such as hay imports or silage.

The argument of a group of eastern Canadian farmers that valuable nutritional content will be lost in the hay conditioning process, is disproved by the fact a large number of farmers in the United States have used the method for several years with great success and without losing their herds' productivity.

E. L. Robson of Bench Road said he has been using a hay conditioner for the past three years and said it is one of the finest pieces of equipment.

"It enables us to make hay in two days instead of in four or five days, and the hay quality is much better," he said. He said the faster the hay can be made, the better it is.

"If the hay has been in the sun too long and is too dry, it loses its nutritional value. You might as well feed sawdust," he said.

J. A. N. Balme, who operates an Ayrshire dairy farm south of Duncan, claims the conditioner speeds up haying but is bad when it rains. He has used one for the past two years, and the first one he tried out four years ago was practically useless.

He said the machines at that time were equipped with steel rollers instead of with rubber rollers, as now.

Riverside Road farmer Pete Greenewold is satisfied with the hay conditioners he has been using for the second year.

District agriculturalist Ken Jamieson said a cheaper way to save the hay harvest is to make silage in May and June, and during July and August to make hay after the fields have been irrigated.

"First class silage can be made any time and a large number of farmers, by far the majority, use it," said Mr. Jamieson. A third method of overcoming wet hay is drying, by far the outstaid and not likely to be introduced on a large scale on Vancouver Island in the foreseeable future. It would mean paying an additional fuel bill during the summer months.

For Duncan Zoo

Fifteen Birds Dead In India Shipment

DUNCAN—For the first time in five years since the Duncan Zoo started operating, a shipment with 18 birds from the Raymunda Zoo at Calcutta was ill-fated.

Fifteen of the metal-colored birds were dead when zookeeper Jim Oyen went to Patricia Bay airport to claim the parcel early Tuesday. The shipment was valued at $200, but Mr. Oyen said he hopes the dealer in India will replace the loss.

GOOD HEALTH

When the shipment left Calcutta 48 hours previously, the birds were in good health, according to the certificate issued by an Indian government veterinarian. The Calcutta zoo guarantees delivery in good health.

The zookeeper here said every shipment with tropical animals is clearly marked Keep in Heated Place.

"The sudden change from tropical to wet, cool Vancouver climate is deadly for those animals," said Mr. Oyen. He recalls another instance which almost cost him a $3,000 shipment from Calcutta of 150 different reptiles during a recent winter.

He at that time went to Patricia Bay airport and found the crate standing in the ice-cold draft of a hangar.

Only his quick action—he distributed the reptiles in an office among scared typists—saved that shipment.

The birds had been placed in a roomy bamboo cage, with small compartments for each and sufficient food. During his five years here Mr. Oyen received about 50 shipments from all over the world, but none had been as ill-fated as this one with birds from Calcutta.

RCMP Team

No Clues Offered In Murder

NANAIMO—No fresh information was volunteered to RCMP investigators in Nanaimo Wednesday following an appeal for clues in the case of the double murder of Dianne Phipps and Leslie Dixon.

Staff-Sgt. J. Purdy has returned to Nanaimo to continue investigation of the October, 1962, slaying. He recently successfully apprehended two brothers in connection with the slaying of a Mission, B.C., girl.

A special station has been set up in the RCMP station here to record any information since the public appeal was made yesterday. Wednesday night no entries had been made but a six-man team of investigators is now at work.

MURDER WEAPON

The investigation is being directed toward establishing ownership of the murder weapon, a Winchester model 63 .22 calibre semi-automatic rifle.

The rifle, which has an unusual butt-loading mechanism, was found under the ice of Long Lake, Jan. 28, 1963.

The young couple had been in a parked car in Piper's Lagoon. Both were shot in the head but the body of Miss Phipps was found near the Old Lakes Road. She had also been bludgeoned.

A total of $5,000 in reward money is offered for information leading to the arrest of the killer.

Picket Line Formed At Barge

COURTENAY—Crewmen of the fishboat Pachena formed a picket line near the Nordic Fisheries buyer's barge Wednesday afternoon after the company announced it would continue to sell fish locally despite the strike.

The strikers said they were awaiting fish which they would sell at 17 cents a pound to raise money for their strike fund.

Nordic Fisheries manager

Bill Webster said he was buying enough fish from trollers—who are not on strike—to supply the local markets.

'You Must Be There'

Scots' Advice About Highland Games

From one Scot to another, "you must be there," is the urgent message by Victoria Scotsman Alex MacLeod-Baird for Saturday's Highland Games at Macdonald Park.

Mr. Baird said his motto for this year's games is: "Friends meet once a year—a handshake for an old acquaintance and a welcome for a new one."

Competition entries have increased over those of last year, said the chairman of the Highland Games Association's finance committee and past president of the association.

Among the highlights: Canadian Scottish Regiment will play Lieutenant-Governor Pearkes—who is escorted by association president William Marshall—to the platform. Chieftain Stuart Kennedy will escort "other notables."

Nine bands will participate in the grand march—past, among them bands from Portland, Seattle, Powell River, and the Seaforth from Vancouver.

For the first time in four years there will be an A-band and a B-band competition for pipers and drummers. Entries stand at 28 for dancing and 13 for piping. Competitions start at 9 a.m., athletic events at 11 a.m., and official opening is slated for 3 p.m.

He Speaks Silently

Sign Language Useful

By BOB PETHICK

A Victoria city policeman has turned a somewhat unusual pastime into a useful communication medium he can use in courts and in police business, as well as for his own pleasure.

Const. Albert Harwood, with 17 years on the force to his credit, learned the language of silence when he was in hospital after a motorcycle accident.

The man on the next bed was also a motorcyclist and they found themselves on common ground.

One day a deaf mute visited the other man and they told jokes in sign language.

Curiosity got the best of Const. Harwood who missed out on the jokes. "By the time punchline was explained to me there wasn't much of a joke left. So I learned sign language," he said.

"I asked if he would teach me and he jumped at the chance. I think he was happy to be able to teach the language to a policeman."

From then on Const. Harwood met and counts among his friends a number of deaf mutes. His knowledge of the language has served useful on a number of occasions.

Once when two deaf mute children arrived in Victoria he was able to ask around and discovered where they lived.

Occasionally he is called on to help in things like purchases of cars or seeking legal advice.

Once he took part in a trial where there were two interpreters.

"I was translating evidence for a deaf mute. The man charged was a German, I think, and also needed an interpreter," he said.

More recently he appeared in city magistrate's court as interpreter for a man who was charged with theft. He found the man relaxed as soon as he realized there was a policeman who can speak the language.

Sign language is not too hard to learn according to Const. Harwood. There is a sign for each letter in the alphabet and some signs mean whole words.

Const. Harwood has one ambition in connection with his somewhat unusual study. "Some day I'm going to go to that school (Jericho Hall) in Vancouver. They teach everything there. I'd like to see them in action."

A new boat launching ramp on the South Saanich Indian Reserve near Brentwood will be open Saturday, in time for the big salmon fishing derby sponsored by the Victoria Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association.

Chief Samuel Sam said last night that 36 yards of cement were poured at low tide this week to get the ramp finished in time for the Anglers' Association handicapped children's derby.

LAUNCHING FEE

The Tuart Indians will charge sportsmen the standard $1 boat launching fee to use the new ramp at Indian Bay below the feet of Steeles Creek Road.

Once the cost of building the ramp is repaid, proceeds will be earmarked for a fund which will be used for construction of a recreation centre on the reserve for Indian children, Chief Sam said.

Boys' Killing Described

'I Told Him to Say His Last Prayers'

QUEBEC (CP)—A 43-year-old paroled rapist Wednesday described how he killed four boys after sexually attacking them and then was found criminally responsible for their deaths by a coroner's jury.

Leopold Dion, 43, confessed he killed the four boys "because I didn't want to go back to penitentiary."

Crown Prosecutor Jean Bienvenue said Dion will be arraigned today on charges of capital murder in all four slayings.

Dion was paroled last fall after serving 17 years of a life sentence for rape.

It took the jury two minutes to return the verdict after Dion had testified in detail for 2½ hours.

Dion's testimony about how he lured the boys nimbled the courtroom and left relatives weeping.

There were 60 provincial policemen, 20 of them in the courtroom and the others outside, to prevent any possible outbreaks.

Dion said that he told all four boys that he was a photographer for an American magazine. He picked them up in his car, drove them around town, then took them to Portneuf County, about 25 miles west of here.

Any charges against Dion will be decided on by the attorney-general's department of Quebec, where charges in cases of violent death are not lodged until after an inquest.

Shortly before Dion told his story Wednesday night, his case was discussed briefly in the Commons at Ottawa where Donald MacDonald, parliamentary secretary for justice, declined to disclose details of how he was released.

No Reasons Given

Dr. Guy Marcoux (Ind. SC—Quebec Montmorency) wanted to know who recommended the parole, and Mr. MacDonald said the Parole Board cannot discuss its reasons for liberating convicts.

Mr. MacDonald said the parole board has full powers to grant conditional releases and has exclusive jurisdiction. He said no more detailed statement could be given until "justice had taken its course" in Dion's case. There would be no investigation of how the board paroles convicts.

The justice department could only express its deepest sympathy to the families of the four dead boys.

Three weeks ago, parole board chairman G. T. Street said Dion had been freed after "favorable psychiatric report."

Dion broke down several times. Each time he described the death of the boys, his voice cracked and he shuddered.

Handcuffed to two husky guards, Dion, a powerful, five-foot-ten 200-pounder, was led to the witness box while relatives of the dead boys watched.

After describing how he sexually attacked and then strangled Guy Lachance, 12, of Kamourangi April 20, he said he did it because "I didn't want him to tell anybody, because I would have to go back to penitentiary."

He then put his head in his hands and sobbed.

"I told him to say his last prayers, that I didn't want to keep him from going to heaven," he said. There were sobs from the back of the courtroom.

Had No Choice

"I told him I had no choice," Dion testified. "He said 'let me go and I won't tell' but even if he meant it then a 12-year-old boy couldn't have been depended on."

He testified he had no sexual satisfaction from any of the boys.

There was a five-minute adjournment to allow Dion to regain composure.

When he returned, he said he had given the Lachance boy at least two minutes to pray.

"He seemed to be praying," Dion testified. "I squeezed as hard as possible so he wouldn't suffer."

Dion then told how Sunday, May 5, he met Michel Morel, 9, and Alain Carrier, 11, on the Plains of Abraham in Quebec City.

He attracted them with his box camera. He took them to an abandoned house near Port Rouge, 20 miles west of Quebec, and up to an attic room in which he sometimes lived.

He said that at one point he heard a car outside and found that a family was about to picnic on the yard near the house.

He told them it was private property and they drove away.

Then he went back to the attic and talked the boys into posing for pictures, giving them a couple of pairs of short pants to be used instead of bathing suits.

They believed he worked for a film company. His voice breaking again, Dion said he decided to separate the boys. He sent one to his car to listen to the radio, then tied the other to the bed.

When it became evident what he wished, he said, each boy refused. He said Michel Morel, told he was going to be killed, said a Hail Mary and an Act of Contrition aloud.

Says Russia:

China Red Enemy

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet defence ministry Wednesday denounced the Red Chinese as "enemies" who are trying to incite the Soviet people against the Communist party and shake their confidence in the Kremlin leadership.

It was the first time since the bitter Sino-Soviet ideological dispute erupted that the Communist Chinese were publicly branded "enemies" of the U.S.S.R.

The attack came in Communist of the Armed Forces, the official monthly publication of the defence ministry.

"Our enemies well understand that the strength of the party lies in its unity with the masses and the strength of the people lies in the leadership for which reason they are aiming their poisoned ideological arrows principally at the party," the magazine said.

Wholesale Stock Purchase

Owner of 250-foot yacht Daugman scheduled to make refuelling stop at Victoria today, shipping tycoon Daniel Ludwig, 68, has bought 1,200,000 shares of Union Oil Co. of California stock for $100,530,000 as a personal investment, according to New York Herald Tribune. He is reputed to have a personal fortune of $350,000,000.

Khrushchev Encouraging

Non-Aggression Pact Snag Delays Test Ban Signing

MOSCOW (AP)—American, British and Soviet delegates were believed to have concluded the final draft of a nuclear test-ban treaty Wednesday, but its initialing was held up by arguments over a non-aggression pact between NATO and the Communist bloc.

Not only was much of Wednesday's meeting devoted to the non-aggression pact, but Premier Khrushchev himself returned it to centre stage.

While negotiators worked a long day at Spiridonovka Palace, the news agency Tass released a letter from Khrushchev to Africans saying that signing the ban on nuclear tests in the air, in space and under water could result in "a radical turn toward a better international climate."

He added that this change for the better could come from the pact "as well as by signing a non-aggression pact."

Although he linked the two, the premier did not specifically say they must be bound together.

Khrushchev's letter was written to the heads of 30 African states who met in May in Addis Ababa, Ethiopia. In it, he also offered them a guarantee not to use nuclear weapons in Africa if a third world war broke out provided the Western powers would make the same pledge.

Both the Americans and British were ready to talk about non-aggression but they were reported to have told the Russians again that talk about it was all they were authorized to do. They wanted a test-ban agreement without complications.

Both the American and British delegations came out of Tuesday's talks jubilant. A signature was looked upon as likely Wednesday but correspondents later were advised to be cautious in their forecasts on the time for initialing.

The treaty was essentially what was proposed nearly a year ago by the British and Americans at the 17-nation disarmament committee in Geneva.

Cause, Effect

A Negro man and a white woman (above) joined hands in a muddy street in an effort to prevent supply trucks from entering a construction site in Brooklyn.

Police pulled the pair apart and carried them to a waiting patrol wagon. Police arrested 12 pickets at the site where they are seeking more building trade jobs for Negroes and Puerto Ricans.

Instruction Given In Toll Case

LAY CHARGE RCMP TOLD

By TERRY HAMMOND

An RCMP official said yesterday the force has received instructions from the attorney-general's department to lay charges in connection with alleged toll thefts at the government ferry service terminal in Nanaimo.

Inspector George McKay, officer commanding the Vancouver Island sub-division, told the Colonist yesterday that instructions to proceed with the laying of charges had been sent to the Nanaimo RCMP detachment.

But a Nanaimo RCMP official said the word had not yet arrived.

ONE INDIVIDUAL

Insp. McKay expected the charges to be laid today or Friday. He said only one individual will be charged.

Decision to lay charges in the case came after RCMP conducted an intensive investigation into operations at the Nanaimo terminal.

PROMINENT FAMILY

The police investigation was launched after former terminal manager Jack Washer, 42, charged that a toll-taker who had admitted thefts to ferry service officials was being protected from prosecution because he came from a prominent Nanaimo family.

Mr. Washer was fired from his job last month for failing to give adequate supervision—a charge that arose from discovery of alleged thefts.

APPEAL AUG. 12

Meanwhile, a civil service commission spokesman said yesterday the ex-terminal manager's appeal against dismissal will be heard on Aug. 12.

The hearing will be conducted before the full commission consisting of chairman Dr. Hugh Morrison, deputy welfare minister Ray Rickinson and deputy municipal affairs minister Everett Brown.

FINAL APPEAL

If Washer is not satisfied with the commission's ruling he can make a final appeal to a civil service board of reference which would have to be specially set up by cabinet order.

A ferry service investigation into the alleged toll thefts by one of the terminal's collectors was weeks old when the former terminal manager brought the case into the open with an exclusive Colonist interview.

NOT INFORMED

He said he had been fired following an investigation by ferry service security personnel which he had not been informed about beforehand.

The probe should have been made by the RCMP, he claimed at the time.

He said a collector had been fired by the ferry service after interviews with officials.

NO CHARGES

The officials, he charged, had assured the collector no charges would be laid if he signed a statement admitting toll thefts. Mr. Washer estimated the thefts at thousands of dollars and said the toll collecting system was at fault.

Lack of a proper ticketing system was an "invitation to theft," he claimed.

CLOSE SATURDAY

Premier Bennett, chairman of the B.C. Toll Authority, indicated following Washer's charges that a clean audit was being given the collection system and that changes might be made if a better procedure could be evolved.

New, Big Wheat Deal Set with Red China?

WINNIPEG (UPI)—Negotiations have been completed between Canada and Communist China for a big wheat deal, estimated at about $150,000,000, unconfirmed reports said here Wednesday. The last Canadian sale of wheat to China was last fall when terms were announced for 34,000,000 bushels amounting to about $85,000,000.

UN Commission Expels Portugal

GENEVA (Reuters)—The United Nations Economic and Social Council expelled Portugal from the economic commission for Africa Wednesday, but failed to reach a decision on South African membership in the regional body.

'Unite With Reds'

MOSCOW (AP)—Premier Khrushchev has promised Africans a quick end to colonial regimes on their continent if they unite and join the Communist camp. In a message Wednesday to governments which participated in the recent African summit conference at Addis Ababa, Khrushchev said "fighters for national independence" could count on practical assistance from the Soviet Union.

The council agreed to defer further debate on South Africa until later in the session, due to end next week.

South African Premier Hendrik Verwoerd said in Cape Town last week his country had decided to leave the commission because of the "hostility now being demonstrated by the African states."

SEVEN TO ZERO

The decision to expel Portugal was taken by seven votes to zero with 11 abstentions in the 18-member council.

The resolution proposing the move was sponsored by Ethiopia and Senegal, whose delegate accused Portugal of carrying out a "vast genocide campaign" against her African subjects.

Suspend Portugal Ghana Tells UN

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—A Ghanaian told the United Nations security council Wednesday it should suspend Portugal from UN membership unless Portugal acts by mid-September to end alleged repression in Angola.

Portugal denied there was such repression in its African colony and invited four African cabinet ministers present to go to Angola and Mozambique, see things for themselves and talk with the Portuguese about African problems.

Their speeches highlighted the third day of the 11-nation council debate on the situation in Portuguese African territories, started by request of 32 African countries.

Ghanaian chief delegate Alex Quaison-Sackey accused Portugal of ignoring the council's 1961 resolution calling on her to "desist forthwith from repressive measures" in Angola, then the scene of a rebellion.

In Two Days

Ward Art Show Ordered Shut

LONDON (UPI)—Dr. Stephen Ward's art show was to be given 48 hours to close today.

A London County Council order charged the Museum Street gallery which is exhibiting the works of a building bylaw. It gave the gallery owners two days to apply for a licence or face a summons.

There are 165 portraits by Ward on sale at the gallery for a total of $80,000. The proceeds will go to pay for Ward's defence against vice charges. (See Page 35.)

Since the show opened two days ago 1,500 persons paid five shillings (70 cents) each to see it. Seventeen paintings were sold for about £3,000 ($8,000).

Robert Katz, one of the gallery's two directors, said he is taking legal advice.

"We will fight," Katz said. "This is bureaucracy gone mad."

Among the portraits on show at the exhibition are those of Prince Philip, Princess Margaret, Premier Khrushchev and Archbishop Makarios. A portrait of former prime minister John Diefenbaker was bought by a Canadian.
